H. H. THE NIZAM'S GUARANTEED STATE RAILWAY Co., Ld.

ADVERTISING AT RAILWAY STATIONS.

THE PROPRIETOR of the Bombay Gazette Press, having leased from the NIZAM'S STATE RAILWAY COMPANY the exclusive right of advertising at all the Railway Stations belonging to the Company, is prepared to contract with parties desirous of posting notices or advertisements on the lines.

The Cantonment of SECUNDERABAD, as is well known, contains the largest military garrison in India—a garrison comprising over 5,000 British and native troops. Contiguous to it is the Cantonment of BOLARUM, garrisoned by two regiments and one battery of the Hyderabad Contingent, officered by Europeans. South of Secunderabad, about 4 miles, are the suburbs of Hyderabad, containing the Nizam's regular troops, about 5,000 in number, officered mostly by Europeans—besides a large civil population. It would manifestly be advantageous to firms to advertise at the stations on the above railway, the most important of which are SECUNDERABAD, HYDERABAD, GANGAWARUM, and TANDUR.

The announcements may be in English or in any of the NATIVE LANGUAGES.

INSURANCE COMPANIES, SHIPPING COMPANIES, HOTEL-KEEPERS, MERCHANTS, TRADERS, and others who wish to force their business on the notice of the public, all alike value the privilege of Railway Station Advertising.

There is no reason why the privilege should not be also specially valuable to Advertisers in India looking to the great and increasing number of Native Railway Passengers on the two trunk lines on Western India. Native Merchants, Traders, &c. seeing that they have the privilege of advertising in their own language, would find the publication of their announcements at Railway Stations an infallible means of extending their business.

Advertisers can select the Station at which they wish their Placards posted, and may advertise for any period that may be agreed on. The charges have been fixed on an extremely moderate scale to encourage Advertisers to make a liberal use of the new means now offered of making announcements known to the public.

Placards, according to the taste of Advertisers may be printed at the Press in ENGLISH or any of the NATIVE LANGUAGES at the Bombay Gazette Press. Estimates on application.

RATES.

Board not exceeding 2 feet long and 2 feet broad Re. 1 per month. For every additional square foot annas 2.

Thus a firm exhibiting a board, say 4 square feet will have the advantage of having their business advertisement read by thousands of Passengers on one station platform for the trifling monthly expenditure of Re. 1. Parties advertising on six Stations or more will be allowed a discount of ten per cent. twelve Stations or more, twenty-five per cent.

The Boards will be delivered at the Bombay Gazette Office, whence they will be sent by the Lessee to the various stations selected by the Advertiser. In the event of the contract terminating, the boards will be brought back to Bombay at the expense and risk of the Advertiser.

Special arrangements for long periods.

For further particulars apply to the Manager of the "Bombay Gazette" Office, Esplanade Road Fort.

EPPS'S COCOA.

BREAKFAST.

"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately-flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us, ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—See article of the Civil Service Gazette.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE,

THE ORIGINAL AND ONLY GENUINE.

ADVICE TO INVALIDS.—If you wish to obtain quiet, refreshing sleep, free from headache, relief from pain and anguish, to calm and assuage the weary sobbings of protracted disease, invigorate the nervous media, and regulate the circulating systems of the body, you will provide yourself with that marvellous remedy discovered by Dr. J. Collis Browne (late Army Medical Staff), to which he gave the name of CHLORODYNE, and which is admitted by the Profession to be the most wonderful and valuable remedy ever discovered.

CHLORODYNE is the best remedy known for Coughs, Consumption, Bronchitis, Asthma.

CHLORODYNE acts like a charm in Diarrhœa and is the only specific in Cholera and Dysentery.

CHLORODYNE effectually cuts short all attacks of Epilepsy, Hysteria, Palpitation, and Spasms.

CHLORODYNE is the only palliative in Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Gout, Cancer, Toothache, Meningitis, &c.

From Symes & Co., Pharmaceutical Chemists, Medical Hall, Simla, January 5, 1880, to J. T. Davenport, Esq., 33, Great Russell-street, Bloomsbury, London. "Dear Sir,—We embrace this opportunity of congratulating you upon the widespread reputation this justly esteemed medicine, Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne, has earned for itself not only in Hindostan, but all over the East. As a remedy of general utility, we much question whether a better is imported into the country, and we shall be glad to hear of its finding a place in every Anglo-Indian home. The other brands, we are happy to say, are now relegated to the native bazaars, and judging from their sale, we fancy their sojourn there will be but evanescent. We could multiply instances ad infinitum of the extraordinary efficacy of Dr Collis Browne's Chlorodyne in Diarrhœa and Dysentery, Spasms, Cramps, Neuralgia, the Vomiting of Pregnancy and as a general sedative, for have occurred under our personal observation during many years. In Cholera, Diarrhœa, and even in the more terrible forms of Cholera itself, we have witnessed its surprisingly controlling power. We have never used any other form of this medicine than Collis Browne's from a firm conviction that it is decidedly the best, and also from a sense of duty we owe to the profession and the public, as we are of opinion that the substitution of any other than Collis Browne's is A DELIBERATE BREACH OF FAITH ON THE PART OF THE CHEMIST TO PRESCRIBER AND PATIENT ALIKE. We are, sir, faithfully yours Symes &Co., Members of the Pharm Society of Great Britain, His Excellency the Viceroy's Chemists."

CAUTION.—Vice-Chancellor Sir W. Page Wood states that Dr. J. Collis Browne is the undoubted, the Inventor of Chlorodyne; that the story of the defendant Freeman was deliberately untrue, which he regretted to say, had been sworn to.—See "The Times," July 13, 1864.

Sold in bottles at 1s 1½d., 2s. 9d., 4s. 6d., and 11s. each. None is genuine without the words "Dr. J.Collis Browne's Chlorodyne" on the Government stamp. Overwhelming medical testimony accompanies each bottle.

CAUTION.—Beware of Piracy an Imitation. Sole Manufacturer—J. T. DAVENPORT, 33, Russell's Street, Bloomsbury ; London.

IMPORTANT NOTICE.

HUBBUCK'S PATENT WHITE ZINC PAINT.

TO Architects, Contractors, Dock Companies, Mill Owners, Railway Companies, Ship Owners and all who are desirous of obtaining a reliable and durable Paint, THOMAS HUBBUCK AND SON (the original Patentees of White Zinc Paint) beg to inform the above that "HUBBUCK'S GENUINE PATENT WHITE ZINC PAINT AND OILS" can always be obtained of the undermentioned well known Firms in Bombay. This Paint has successfully stood the test of all climates for many years, and has an ever increasing demand; it is far superior in pureness of colour, in body, in fineness, and lasting properties to any other Paint; retains its color, and when mixed with HUBBUCK'S PALE BOILED LINSEED OIL does not crack or blister, and is not affected by atmospheric changes, salt water, or gas). THOMAS HUBBUCK AND SON knowing the importance of such a Paint to the above, trust their Friends will continue to use this world-renowned HUBBUCK'S PATENT WHITE ZINC PAINT, the quality of which never varies

HUBBUCK'S PALE BOILED LINSEED OIL.

THOS. HUBBUCK & SON desire to call attention to their special PALE BOILED LINSEED OIL. This OIL is paler than Raw Linseed Oil and therefore does not discolor White or other delicate colors. By their patent process all the gummy matter (which renders Paint non-drying and sticky) is extracted making the Paint mixed with this Oil dry quickly with a perfectly hard and smooth surface, prevents blistering, and is therefore consequently much more durable. This Oil has been successfully in use for many years in China, Japan, the West Indies, the Straits Settlements, Burmah, &c. One trial will show the importance of this Oil in a climate like India, and will cause it to become in general demand through India. THOS. HUBBUCK & SON ship only GENUINE OILS and TURPENTINE, and therefore, trust their friends will see when ordering HUBBUCK'S PAINTS that they also get HUBBUCK'S GENUINE OILS and TURPENTINE. Good Paint is destroyed by using an inferior Oil.

EYESIGHT!

THE necessity for proper testing of the sight before ordering Spectacles cannot be overrated. We have the highest medical authority confirmed by daily experience that imperfect glasses, together with the haphazard plan of selection generally employed, are frequent causes of irremediable injury to the sight, and as no present economy can compensate for such a loss, it behoves all to be cautious how they are tempted to use the common Spectacles now so generally sold by those who keep an ill-assorted collection just to complete a miscellaneous stock.

We make this department of our business a speciality, and we claim to have the largest and most complete stock in India. Our Opticians being thoroughly practical men, we can guarantee the correction of the defects and irregularities of the sight by optical means.

DR. A. MENIST'S PERFECT PEBBLES

Have always been and always are by a very long way the best procurable, and owing to the present favorable rate of exchange, we have been able to reduce their prices, which though very little in advance of other Houses the slightly extra cost is more than compensated for by their superiority and perfection.

It is well known to us from experiments that a great deal of discomfort must arise from the use of spectacles with ill-fitting frames, for instance a pair of lenses in frames a little too wide or a little too narrow would compel the patient to look through the inner or outside sides of the lenses or through their prisms instead of through their centre and which must necessitate a call upon the convergence muscles for increased effort at a time when the accommodation muscles are relaxed. This cannot but be a source of discomfort at all times and a source of danger to the eyes. Several instances have been known in which discomfort in wearing spectacles has been removed as soon as lenses of the same power were put into frames adopted to the requirements of the wearer.

Every precaution is taken by us to supply not only the best lenses procurable but also to supply frames in which the lenses are so placed as to make the wearing of spectacles a pleasure.

NERVOUS EXHAUSTION.

PULVERMACHER'S WORLD-FAMED GALVANIC BELTS, for the cure of NERVOUS EXHAUSTION and DEBILITY, have received Testimonials from THREE PHYSICIANS TO HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN and the leading Physicians of Nine London Hospitals, including Forty Members of the Royal College of Physicians of London.

The distressing symptoms of NERVOUS EXHAUSTION and DEBILITY are speedily removed by means of Pulvermacher's World-famed Galvanic Belts, which are so arranged as to convey a continuous electric current direct to the affected parts, gradually stimulating and strengthening all the nerves and muscles, and speedily arresting all symptoms of waste and decay.

Dr. C. HANDFIELD JONES, F.R.C.P., F.R.S., Physician to St. Mary's Hospital, says: "I am satisfied that Mr. PULVERMACHER is an honest and earnest labourer in the field of science, and I think he deserves to meet with every encouragement from the profession and scientific men."

Sir CHARLES LOCOCK, Bart., M.D., Physician to Her Majesty, says: "PULVERMACHER'S BELTS are very effective in Neuralgia and Rheumatic Affections, and I have prescribed them largely in my practice for other similar maladies, paralysis, &c."

For Full Price Lists and Particulars, see new Pamphlet, "GALVANISM: NATURE'S CHIEF RESTORER OF IMPAIRED VITAL ENERGY." Post free from

LUMINOUS PHOSPHORUS
Important to Invalids!

H. & T. KIRBY & CO'S PREPARATIONS

Possess wonderful VITALIZING and ENERGIZING PROPERTIES and are THE MOST POWERFUL RESTORATIVES OF VIGOUR AND MENTAL ACTIVITY KNOWN. The Phosphorus being unoxidised supplies the brain and spinal cord with its proper Pabulum.

In this form it is powerfully remedial, particularly in LOSS OF NERVE POWER, as manifested by INCAPACITY FOR WORK, WANT OF ENERGY, LOWNESS OF SPIRITS, NEURALGIA, MENTAL DEPRESSION, MELANCHOLIA, FEEBLE DIGESTION AND CIRCULATION, COLD EXTREMITIES, WEAK HEART, LOSS OF PHYSICAL VIGOUR, and NERVOUS DEBILITY. For these and all other conditions indicating defective nutrition or exhaustion of the nervous centres, whether arising from overwork, the effect of climate or excess, Medical authorities all agree that PHOSPHORUS is the most effectual remedy.

The following preparations, of which we are the ORIGINAL Makers, are thoroughly reliable. They may be obtained from our appointed Agents (see below), in Bottles, 3s., 5s. and 10s. each (English money), the 10s. Bottle containing sufficient for a course of three weeks. Two 10s. Bottles may be obtained direct from the makers' laboratory, carriage paid to any post town in India or Australia, by remitting Post Office Order for 21s.

SIMPLE PHOSPHORUS PILLS.

(Dr. KIRBY'S Formula, No. 3), containing 1-20th gr. Phosphorus.

Dr. KIRBY says: "Experience fully warrants the administration of Phosphorus in this dose" in severe attacks of Neuralgia and cases of extreme Nervous Exhaustion; it gives excellent results, taken with food three or four times a day.

PHOSPHORUS AND QUININE PILLS.

(Dr. KIRBY'S Formula, No. 3), containing 1-50th gr. Phosphorus.

This is a valuable combination of two powerful restoratives. As a nutrient tonic it gives power to the brain and spinal cord, imparts tone to the digestive organs, increases functional activity and improves the condition of the whole system. It is largely employed in India during convalescent stages of intermittent and remittent fevers. It is an excellent remedy for Malaria induced by the climate, and is a good prophylactic against Malaria.

PHOSPHORUS AND IRON PILLS.

(Dr. KIRBY'S Formula, No. 7), containing 1-50th gr. Phosphorus.

This is given with great advantage in Anæmia, Sciatica, and other Neuralgic affections, also in the treatment of convalescence from fever and other debilitating diseases. It is an excellent chemical food for anæmic children, and a good adjuvant to a course of cod liver oil.

PHOSPHORUS AND NUX VOMICA PILLS.

(Dr. KIRBY'S Formula, No. 6), containing 1-33rd gr. Phosphorus.

This combination is useful in all the cases named above, but especially in cases of feeble digestion and loss of power, following excesses. Taken regularly with food for a few weeks it has a powerful restoring effect on broken-down constitutions.

PHOSPHORUS, QUININE AND NUX VOMICA PILLS.

(Dr. KIRBY'S Formula, No. 4), containing 1-50th gr. Phosphorus.

The use of this combination will be gathered from what has been said of the previous Formulæ, Nos. 3 and 6.

For a similar combination with Iron, see No. 9.

COMPOUND PHOSPHORUS PILLS.

(Dr. KIRBY'S Formula, No. 9), containing 1-50th gr. Phosphorus, with Iron, Quinine and Strychnia.

This combination of nerve tonics has a very large application It is efficacious in all disorders which are characterised by impoverished blood and diminished nerve power, especially in that low condition of the general health which is induced by overwork, dissipation, and excesses of various kinds. In this state Iron and phosphorus is strongly indicated. In Constitutional Syphilis it has a high remedial power, by improving the condition of the blood and by stimulating its regenerative power. It is exceedingly energising and strength-giving. As a tonic for convalescents recovering from fever and other exhausting diseases it is unequalled.

STRONG PHOSPHORUS, IRON, QUININE AND NUX VOMICA PILLS.

(Dr. KIRBY'S Formula, No. 12), containing 1-25th gr. Phosphorus.

This is double the strength of No. 9 as regards Phosphorus and Quinine, and therefore should be prescribed only in cases where the larger dose of Phosphorus is needed.

PHOSPHORUS, CANTHARIDES & NUX VOMICA PILLS.

(Dr. KIRBY'S Formula, No. 20), containing 1-33rd gr. Phosphorus.

This pill produces no irritation of the gastro-intestinal mucous membrane, but operates as

FALL OUT OF A WINDOW.—On Thursday, Hussainally Mamoojee, a plumber, was fixing a waste water pipe to the wall of a house, at Pydhownee Road, from a window on the second floor when he over-balanced, and fell down the street. He sustained a fracture to his left arm and other slighter injuries. He is at present in the Sir Jamsetjee Hospital.

BURGLARY AT DADUR.—The house of Baboo Mangulsing, situated at Dadur, was broken into on Wednesday, and property consisting of wearing apparel, valued at Rs. 100, and a tin trunk, containing a cash-box, with Rs. 14-8, stolen. The tin trunk and cash-box were subsequently found by the police near the house broken open with their contents missing.

THE LATE MR. MARTINHO MENEZES.—Thursday last being the thirtieth day of the death of the late Mr. Martinho Antonio Menezes, who died in Goa, his friends and countrymen in Bombay dedicated to his memory a solemn officium defunctorum in the Church of St. Francis Xavier, at Dabul. The Bishop of Damaun officiated, and a large number of priests took part. The Rev. Marcal Alvares delivered the funeral oration, touching on the character and virtues of the deceased.

SUDDEN DEATH.—An inquest was held by the Coroner yesterday, at Byculla, respecting the death of Mahadeo Luximon, aged 35 years, a labourer employed at Messrs. Richardson and Cruddas's workshop, Byculla. He frequently complained of pains in his chest and difficulty of breathing. On Thursday afternoon he was seized, while at his work, with a severe pain in his chest, and died almost immediately. The verdict was that the death of Mahadeo Luximon was caused by heart-disease.

"MACLEAN'S GUIDE TO BOMBAY" (Street and Co., Cornhill), makes its appearance in a fifteenth edition, enlarged and improved by the author, who as editor of the Bombay Gazette has excellent qualifications for his task. This work is at once a guide and a local directory, and in both respects is valuable as a book of reference for all who have dealings with our great dependency. The picture of the new Municipal Buildings, somewhat in the style of the Cathedral of San Marco at Venice, gives some idea of the progress of Bombay in recent years.—Daily News.

Polka	Fiorella	W. C. Livey.

GOD SAVE THE QUEEN.

SUICIDE.—An inquest was held by the Coroner, at Camatesepoora 11th. Street, respecting the death of Salvador Pascoal Saldanha, aged 53 years. Deceased was a sub-inspector in the Public Health Department of the Bombay Municipality. He suffered from fever for a long time, and was unable to go to his work. On Wednesday night, about 11 o'clock, he was missed from his room, and could not be found. About 6 p.m. on Thursday his dead body was found floating in a tank in the next street. There were no external marks of violence on the body. The verdict was that the death of S. P. Saldanha was caused by drowning himself in a tank, while in an unsound state of mind.

FATAL CART ACCIDENT.—An inquest was held by the Coroner yesterday, at the J. J. Hospital, respecting the death of a woman, named Suokina, a mendicant, aged 60 years. On the 22nd instant deceased, at 4 a.m., was found lying on the DeLisle Road by a police havildar, with her left leg fractured and bleeding, when she told him that as she was walking along that road about three-quarters of an hour previously she was knocked down and run over by a bullock-cart, and that the cart had gone on towards Parel Road. She was removed to the hospital, and on the following day her leg had to be amputated. She lingered till Thursday afternoon, when she suddenly died. The verdict was that the death of Suckina, was caused by injuries received by her having been knocked down and run over by a vehicle, but under what circumstances she was run over there is no evidence to say.

THE OBJECTIONABLE PERFORMANCE AT THE VICTORIA THEATRE.—At the Girgaum Police Court yesterday, Superintendent Crumpay brought up on remand and charged Venkatrao Parellwallah, Shewjee Babajee, and Manockjee Dadabhoy, before Mr. P. Ryan—accused Nos. 1 and 2 with reciting and singing improper songs at the Victoria Theatre, Grant Road, on the 1st instant, and accused No. 3 with aiding and abetting the commission of the said offence. Mr. Little, the Public Prosecutor, appeared to conduct the case for the prosecution and Mr. Morojee Cassinath appeared on behalf of accused No. 3. A witness, named Nowrojee Sorabjee, was called on behalf of the accused No. 3, who stated, that the accused No. 3 was asleep during the performance at the Victoria Theatre, on the night of the 1st instant. The Magistrate disbelieved this witness and convicted the three accused. In disposing of the case he remarked that indecent songs are very popular amongst low class Maharattas; but the singing of such songs in a public theatre should be put a stop to. His Worship thereupon fined the manager of the theatre Manockjee Dadabhoy, Rs. 200, and the other two, who were the actors, Rs. 50 each.

THE INDIAN CIVIL SERVICE EXAMINATION.—We learn with very sincere pleasure that at the Examination for the Indian Civil Service, held in London, during the last month, Mr. Joseph Aloysius Ezechiel, the eldest son of Lieutenant James A. Ezechiel, C. D., Poona, has succeeded at his first trial in passing and qualifying for an appointment. Whilst pursuing his preparatory studies in India, Mr. Ezechiel had already distinguished himself at the "Dux" of the St. Vincent's Jesuit High School, Poona, from which he Matriculated in November 1885, being at the time only 13 years old. He came out high on the list and carried off the Cowasjee Jehanghier Latin Scholarship. In February, 1886, he proceeded to England and joined St. Charles' College, North Kensington, where he remained until August, 1888, when he was placed at the establishment of Messrs. Wren and Gurney, by whom he has been presented for the Civil Service Examination, which he has now so creditably passed. Notwithstanding all the merit that may be justly claimed by the educational institutions in which he has studied in England, a large meed of praise is undoubtedly due to the zealous Jesuit Fathers under whom he prosecuted his early studies in this country. We very heartily congratulate the young gentleman on his success, and wish him a long and brilliant future in the distinguished Service to which he has been admitted. A younger brother of his, Mr. Percy Ezechiel, who so lately won distinction for himself at St. Xavier's College, Bombay, from which he graduated at the early age of 14 years, is now at St. Charles College, North Kensington, preparing for a University career.—Catholic Examiner.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.—Are you broken in your rest by a sick child suffering with the pain of cutting teeth? Go at once to a chemist and get a bottle of Mrs. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP. It will relieve the poor sufferer immediately. It is perfectly harmless and pleasant to the taste. It produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from the pain, and the little cherub awakes "as bright as a button." It soothes the child, it softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for dysentry and diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup is sold by Medicine dealers everywhere at 1s 1½d. per bottle. Wholesale by the Anglo-American Drug Company, Limited, 33 Farringdon Road, London.

GENERAL INDIAN NEWS.

SERIOUS MILITARY ACCIDENT AT BANGALORE.—On Wednesday morning, while all the Batteries of Artillery, both Horse and Field, were out on route march on the Ooscoor Road, beyond Sausmond, a very sad occurrence took place. One of the wheel drivers by the name of Barnes, belonging to the 61st Battery R.A., met with what we may almost style a fatal accident, as the unfortunate man is not expected to live. From all accounts we have heard, we believe the accident took under the following circumstances. The guns of all the Batteries were made to go at a most reckless pace, although the ground was very rough and the ill starred gunners and drivers had a very hard job to keep their places, and several narrow escapes seemed to have taken place. The poor man who met with the mishap was the man who drove the last pair of horses attached to the shafts of the gun. Not receiving the accustomed signal as is usually the case from those in front that there was a ditch ahead, the driver in question did not steady his horses for the jump and the animals, who were quite fatigued with the two-hours gallop they had had from six o'clock in the morning, stumbled into the ditch and rolled over the unhappy victim, who lay under them helpless, with one of his hands caught in the spokes of the wheel. In this position he was thus dragged over and the heavy gun-carriage wheels crushed his skull and scattered his brains all over the tire of the wheel. Assistance was promptly rendered and the man released from his dreadful condition, when it was discovered that one arm was broken, his collar bone dislocated, and the back part of his skull crashed. General Beaugough, Major Nugent, Commanding the Battery, and all the junior officers and men evinced great concern at the pitiful sight, which moved many of them to tears. The medical arrangements were very bad indeed. We hear that there were none at all, the poor fellow having had to be carried in blankets, a distance of ten miles to Agram Barracks by a few of the men of both batteries to the South Station Hospital, where we understand, he lies in a very precarious condition.—Daily Post.

MADRAS MUNICIPAL MORTUARY.—From the 12th to the 18th instant, 1 European, 8 East Indians, 9 Native Christians, 258 Hindus, and 42 Mahomedans died in Madras, making a total of 308 persons. The average of the corresponding week for the ten previous years was 279. The deaths are thus classified, viz., 61 from cholera, 9 from measles, 84 from fever, 331 from dysentry, 28 from diarrhoea, and 154 from other diseases. The death rate in the week under notice was 41·4 per 1,000 per annum. The mean of the ten previous years was 36·4 per 1,000 per annum.

THE POLICE SUPERINTENDENT OF BALLIA.—In Maulvi Abdul Wahab, Khan Bahadur, District Superintendent of Police of Ballia, who retired from the service on the 19th instant—to the general regret of the whole mass of the district—the Government of these Provinces loses a unique example of a native officer who had risen from the ranks to the Superintendentship of a district. It is needless to say that if the raw material of the force held a few more men of this character, there would be little need to talk of reforming the police. Maulvi Abdul Wahab, we are told, intends devoting the greater portion of his time—and pension—to the establishment and maintenance of a school in his own village for the tuition of his co-religionists, more especially in English.—Pioneer.

THE CALCUTTA POLICE FORCE.—In his review of last year's administration the Calcutta Chief Commissioner of Police passes a smart censure on the proneness of the Presidency courts to unnecessary adjournments. There were 422 adjournments in the course of the year, the adjourned hearings occupying 88 days, and only eight of them taking place on the day following the adjournment "Over and over again," says Mr. Lambert, "cases which are ready for hearing are, after being partly heard, adjourned, not for the following day but for some distant date, to the great inconvenience of all parties. This practice not only imposes hardships on the large body of witnesses, who belong to the poor and labouring classes, but it exposes them unnecessarily to improper overtures from those who will suffer if the witnesses speak the truth." There can be no question about the hardship, and there should be none about the remedy either, if the only thing concerned is the convenience of the Magistrate.—Ibid.

EUROPEAN AND EURASIAN POOR FUND.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE "BOMBAY GAZETTE."

SIR,—You have kindly helped the public through your columns in behalf of this Fund. May we ask the same favour now? The European and Eurasian Poor Fund has undoubtedly done a great deal in Bombay for many years past, both to relieve distress and to check imposture. From facts within our own observation we have constantly illustrated the evils of indiscriminate giving, and have no less constantly urged charitably-disposed persons not to bestow assistance upon applicants for relief, of whom they know nothing, but to refer them to us. These suggestions have been very generally accepted, and in consequence great numbers of cases are sent to us every week. The corresponding invitation, viz., that all those who approve of these suggestions should help us to carry them out by contributing to our Fund—has not, we regret to say, been quite so widely accepted. In our report of 1889 we were glad to acknowledge a large increase in the number of subscribers; but the means at our disposal are still very far short of what we actually need in order to carry out as all adequately the excellent purposes for which the Fund was established. At the present moment we have nothing in hand, and our food bills for last month are still unpaid. In the emergency we need two things—1st, immediate assistance, and, 2nd, additional subscribers. It has been reported to us of late from several quarters that our collecting peon has been very remiss in his attentions, and we have been trying to find a more diligent man to take his place, as we believe that our present difficulties are really due, in some measure, to his indifference. We hope our friends will excuse this unintentional neglect, and we shall be glad if any one would like to contribute, but have not been visited by the peon, would kindly inform us, or send a contribution direct.

2. The subject of European and Eurasian poor relief is one of such great and growing importance in Bombay that you will perhaps permit me to take this opportunity of laying before your readers some of the projects which have been engaging the attention of our committee. The operations of this Fund, since its first establishment in 1874, have been intimately associated with the work of the Mission Church in Girgaum. It has always been a special point with us to obtain a representative committee, and the existing committee is probably the most thoroughly representative which it has ever been our good fortune to secure. But notwithstanding the help so readily given by the members of the committee at the weekly meeting and in other ways, the chief part of the work has inevitably fallen to the clergy of the Mission Church, and few people are probably aware how incessant the calls upon them are. Persons who want relief cannot be restricted to a single afternoon, though the chief part of the business may be transacted then. They come on all days and at all hours of the day; and unless they are already known, each case must receive some attention. It has often been a question whether it might not be better to alter the head-quarters, and, in some respects, the character of the Fund, by establishing it on a larger basis in the business part of the city. Some of the objections to such a proposal are sufficiently obvious. For twenty years the work has been done without any cost to the Fund, beyond the wages of the peon; and so almost every pie collected has gone directly to the relief of the suffering and the distressed. If the organisation of the Fund is much altered from what it is at present, this will probably involve a good deal of additional expense for an office and office establishment, which cannot fail to eat up a large portion of the contributions. And not only but there will always be a very real danger of the system of relief becoming more official and thereby less efficient and less humane. Still the pressure of the work may make some such change a necessary, and those who have laboured most for the objects of the Fund will be the first to welcome any measures by which its usefulness can be increased. Another question under consideration is whether Government should be asked to assist with a subsidy. No doubt Government have benefited to no small extent by the existence of this Fund. Private charity flowing through these channels has relieved and rescued hundreds and thousands of persons who might otherwise have become a costly embarrassment to Government. In Madras a similar institution receives every month from Government a sum equal to the amount raised by public subscriptions, and in Calcutta also a Government grant supplements the donations of private charity. There would seem, therefore, to be good reasons and good precedents for seeking the aid of Government in Bombay. But here, too, it is easy to perceive the objections which might be raised, even if we could assume the consent of Government to the request. It does not seem advisable to apply to the aid of Government until private sources are certainly exhausted; and it would be a dubious advantage for the Fund to have an income largely in excess of its actual requirements. There is always a tendency in large balances to induce prodigality on the part of the almoners, as well as recklessness and imposition on the part of the applicants. Still it may be, and seems as if it would be, absolutely necessary to turn to Government, and in such a case we trust they will not withhold their help. We had hoped that these and other questions connected with the organisation and working of the Fund would be discussed at a meeting, which it was intended to summon during this last cold season. But the arrival and departure of Princes and Governors, the great Fancy Fair, and other important events, prevented the fulfilment of our intention. We must wait now for a few months longer until the return of the cold season before anything can be done in this direction. One liberal subscriber, who has always taken a deep interest in the objects of the Fund, and who has promised to help us with his counsels and support, if he returns to Bombay, on the eve of his departure for England, most generously made over to us a sum of Rs. 4,000 to perpetuate his subscription, should he not return, and to form the nucleus of an Endowment Fund, if it were decided to raise one.

3. In closing this letter, I must go back to the special purpose for which it was commenced. Though our receipts have largely increased, they have not kept pace with the demands upon us, and we are now urgently in need of help. Want of funds with us means an amount of privation and suffering which we do not care to dwell upon. While we appeal earnestly to individuals, we would also ask whether

CAUTION TO PARENTS.

PARENTS are invited to bring their children while still young to have their sight tested, free of charge.

Myopia, or Near-sight, is very common, particularly in the Parsi community, and it is generally hereditary a prima faci ground for near-sighted parents to suspect its existence in their children.

This defect imposes the necessity of using the unassisted eyes at too short a range, and the tension of accommodation and convergence required to do this, increases the Myopia rapidly in youth, besides often producing other still more disastrous consequences. If on the other hand suitable glasses are worn, the eyes will not be subjected to this strain, and the sight will not undergo this lamentable deterioration, at School and College.

To present the whole case it ought to be added, that the injury when done, is permanent and incurable, and parents will realize how important it is, that this otherwise progressive defect, should be recognized and corrected, at latest, when the child begins to study.

COMMERCIAL INTELLIGENCE

BAR Silver declined FRIDAY EVENING, JULY 25. terday, bringing declined again ½d. in London yesbut Rupee S ing the price down to 49½d. per oz.; Fours, and i securities were ½ per cent. higher in respectivel in 4½ per cents., at £81⅛, and £83½, dian St ly. Consols remained at 96⅝; and Indian Banks' ling Loan at 107½. The Exchange was buying rate on India, at 30 days' sight, W still 1s. 6⅞d., to which it was reduced on dnesday. The weekly Specie shipments consisted of £170,000 in Silver and £80,000 in Gold to this port. Paris quotations come unaltered.

According to the weekly Returns of the Bank of England issued yesterday the Reserve stood at 39 per cent. of the Liabilities, thus showing an increase of 4 per cent. during the week. The Bank rate was still 4 per cent., which was also the market rate of discount both in short London Bills and six months' sight Indian Bank Paper.

The Liverpool Cotton Market continues to show much more activity, Wednesday's Sales, like those of Tuesday, having been increased by 5,000 bales; and the market closed firm last evening; Surats steady; the total Sales having aggregated 1,200 bales inclusive of the large proportion of 1,500 East Indian. The price of spot Mid-Americans remained at 6⅝d.; but "Fine" and "Fully Good" Broach were 1-16d. lower; and rates for American Arrivals were 1-32d. down, July deliveries being quoted as 6 39-64d. and November-December, at 5 13-16d. The day's Imports were 10,000 bales. The Manchester market was quiet but steady.

The price of ready Mid.-Uplands in New York remained at 12 5-16 yesterday: and Futures for September, and for August delivery, were unaltered at 10·94 cents. and 11·96 cents., respectively. The Receipts at the U. S. Ports were 2,000 bales.

The firmer tone and greater activity in Liverpool have had no effect upon our local market for the staple, the feeling here being still very quiet and with no demand to speak of except from the mills. To-day about 3,000 bales are reported to have changed hands, of which a third were Indore, at Rs. 178 per candy; the balance having consisted of Nugger, at Rs. 172-3; Barsee, at Rs. 189-202½; Khangaum, at Rs. 177-8; and Julgaum, at Rs. 173-6 per candy. Prices generally are quoted as before.

WHEAT remains steady in tone, but with only a moderate business passing, prices being unaltered for all descriptions.

SEEDS are decidedly dull, and hardly any fresh business has transpired to-day. Linseed has given way in price to the extent of 2 annas per cwt. say to Rs. 2-2-6 to Rs. 2-5-0 per cwt.; but other kinds are unaltered, and not wanted.

The Receipts of Produce into Bombay yesterday were as follows:—

Cotton	222	bales.
Wheat	12,362	cwt.
Linseed	1,570	"

FREIGHTS are dull in tone with nothing doing; but, in the absence of fresh business to test them, rates may be called unchanged.

EXCHANGE, in sympathy with the further decline in Silver on the other side above recorded opened quiet this morning, at 1s. 7⅛d. for Bank Demand and 1s. 7⅛d. for Credits for the mail, with 1s. 7 3-16 to 7-32d. named for Telegraphic for January transfer. A firmer feeling set in after the close of the mail, however, and final quotations for ready business were as follows:—

Bank Bills on Demand	1s. 7 5-32d.	per rupee.
Do. Telegraphic	1s. 7 3-32d.	"
Do. 3 months' sight	1s. 7 9-32d.	"
Credits do.	1s. 7 7-16d.	"
Francs do.	2·04½	"

GOVERNMENT PAPER was steady, not to say firm, in the earlier part of the day, at some little advance upon last evening's closing rates, Fours for cash having been quoted at 102⅛, while for the coming settlement 102⅜ was the rate, and 102 7-16 for the August account. A weaker tone prevailed however thereafter, and at closing the price for Money was 102⅜. For 4½ per cents. 104½ to ½ is now quoted.

SHARES.—There has been a further upward movement in Cotton Mill scrip to-day, and we note an advance of Rs. 35 in Victoria; of Rs. 25 in Western India; of Rs. 15 each in Empress and Gordon; of Rs. 10 each in James Greaves, Jewraj Balloo, Luckmidas, and Manockjee Petit. Imperial on the other hand, are Rs. 5 lower, at our quotations. Bombay-Burma Trading, first issue, are Rs. 25 down, at Rs. 3,300, and Rs. 10 lower for the new shares at Rs. 700. Treacher and Co. are Rs. 35 higher at Rs. 1,060. Badham, Pile and Co. are Rs. 2 lower at Rs. 123.

COMMERCIAL AND FINANCIAL NEWS.

The shipwrecked crew of the steamer Egypt were landed at Dover last night.

It transpires that the Captain was the only one of those on board who was burnt.

The vessel was carrying a cargo of cattle for Liverpool, and these were roasted alive.

The scenes on board during the burning of the vessel are described as terrible.

The fire broke out on the 17th instant.

THE DOCK LABOURERS' STRIKE.

The dock labourers' dispute has been settled, and the men have resumed work.

ANOTHER MILITARY SENSATION.

THE ANGLO-GERMAN AGREEMENT.
CESSION OF HELIGOLAND.

LONDON, JULY 25.

In the House of Commons last night Sir James Ferguson, in moving the second reading of the Bill for the cession of Heligoland said, that negotiations with France and Portugal continue to be satisfactory.

He said it was impossible to maintain the claim of the Cape to the whole country south of Zambesi.

Mr. Gladstone said he did not oppose the Bill as he considered that on the whole the Anglo-German agreement reflected great credit on Lord Salisbury.

He regretted, however, that the cession of Heligoland had been submitted to Parliament, a course which was without precedent, and he therefore withdrew from the debate.

Mr. Phillips, Gladstonian Liberal Member for Mid-Lanarkshire, moved the rejection of the Bill.

The debate has been adjourned.

VANITY FAIR.

(FROM OUR LADY CORRESPONDENT.)

LONDON, JULY 4.

WHAT next? Here we have been congratulating ourselves on having decorously got over the califourchon difficulty, sent those forward lady-cricketers to Coventry, and settled down comfortably, (or uncomfortably as our maligners the Rational Dress Association would say) to wearing le corsage d'un guêpe, transverse stripes, gossamer wings, and all; when, suddenly, like a summer hurricane, there comes upon us another Dress Reform League, manned, or womaned would perhaps be more correct, by a host of clever creatures whose names are sure to carry weight: Madame Antoinette Sterling, Mrs. Mary Davies, Mrs. Bryant, D.Sc.; Miss Orme, LL.B.; Miss Hughes of Cambridge, various Doctors of all Degrees of both sexes, and an R.A., the famed Horsley, or Clothes-Horsley as Punch reverentially dubs him, to encourage the British matron to take kindly to the innovation.

***

The Morley Hall, Regent Street, was filled on Wednesday with a smart audience, who came to hear all about the new Society and its tenets and to make up their minds as to whether they would become associates. Mrs. Bryant who opened the proceedings protested against the fashion of wearing clothes too tight, too stiff, and too heavy. She thought we ought all object, being equipped with a very complete set of bones of our own, to wearing a second-hand frame work, which was uncomfortable, unhealthy, unbeautiful in fact, unworthy to adorn or disfigure the female form divine. Mrs. Bryant is of a compact figure, and in a white silk vest and dark green velvet zouave jacket she looked very well indeed; and if every one were made on the same pattern the abolition of the corset by the direct veto would be a certainty. But how would our lubberly-wobbly, over-fat matrons of forty-five or fifty look in jaunty silk vests and green velvet zouaves? The law would not permit it—that is all—it would cause a revolution to have the British matron masquerade in such a fashion. But this is by the way. After Mrs. Bryant, speaker after speaker rose up and denounced our dear little corset—it was that miserable corset, that wretched corset. The more modest, who remembered there were men present, called it that abominable article of female attire, that fashionable implement of torture, that wicked machine with which dressmakers defy Providence, and dare to question the Creator's sense of beauty and fitness.

***

No words were too strong to be lavished on it, and by the time the invectives of the speakers were exhausted, all of us who put in an appearance in ever such innocent little pairs of stays, felt like whipped curs who would have slunk out if the opportunity had occurred. Miss Orme, who proposed the resolution that there was a necessity for dress reform, quoted Herbert Spencer, not flatteringly, for she said something to the effect that it was the only sensible thing he had ever said: "Women's dress should be of neutral tint, with one bright spot of color, somewhere near the face, in order to attract attention to the most intellectual part. It seems a plan rather like that adopted by the road contractor who hangs out a red lamp with the legend 'No throughfare—Street closed for repairs.'" I should not have thought this necessary. But I presume Mr. Herbert Spencer knew best, and that he must have found it difficult to discover women's most intellectual part; or perhaps like a dim-sighted cab-horse in the road under repair, that he fell foul of the intellect and preferred to avoid it in future.

***

Madame Antoinette Sterling came down with all her weight on the iniquities of dressmakers in squeezing waists and contracting shoulders to suit the ideal figure. She has evidently had her own way in the matter of her waist, and in the very slightest of her cloaks looked appallingly massive. Mrs. Mary Davies is another singer, who has suffered under the infliction of the corset, having often had to give up promising pupils who could not resign themselves to going loosely stayed. "Woman," said Dr. Wilberforce Smith, "is like the old guard of Waterloo, Woman dies but she will not surrender." He traces innumerable illnesses and deaths to compression; and at the close of the meeting invited any young country ladies who wore no stays to try their force of breathing in a machine which he had brought for the purpose. This was the most interesting part of the proceedings. The first to come forward was a really splendid looking Juno, about twenty-five, with rich golden red hair, twisted in naturally curled bunches on the top of her head, a complexion of exquisite creamy white and peach, and a figure that, though only draped in a commonplace blue serge dress in princess shape, and over massive for her age, was full of dignity and grace. I compared her in my mind favourably with some well-corseted French women whom I had met in Regent Street, and whose figures of hour glass form gushed out everywhere but where they ought. She took in a deep breath, and then breathed into a tube attached to a gasometer-shaped machine, which rose up and marked 207 cubic inches. The next girl to be tested was a young tall slim brunette, more of a Hebe than a Juno, whose form was also guiltless of compression, and who being much younger did not make so good a record. Then came a short dapper little body, who managed to show the value of freedom from tight clothes, for she achieved a higher result than much taller women who wore stays.

Mr. Horsley came down with great virulence on Kate Greenaway bonnets for children, and on the position of the female pocket in ladies' dresses. His remarks would have carried more weight with me if he had not worn a ridiculous stiff grey tall hat as uncomfortable, unwholesome, and unbecoming as any man, woman, or child ever wore. And when he enlarged on the difficulties of women in finding their pocket, I felt I would like to remind him of the contortions and writhings that most men go through when seeking for their handkerchief in an evening coat pocket. Lady Harberton, towards the close of the meeting, when every thing had been arranged satisfactorily, stood up, and like a prophet of ill-omen, declared that the Society to promote healthy and artistic dress would fail because it did not go far enough. It meant only to limp feebly along in the wake of the fashion, and it would consequently degenerate into a society for promoting dowdyism and frumpishness in attire instead of what the members desired. She wished well to it nevertheless, though, like some handsome old Sybil, her blessings did not sound very different from the other thing. I think Lady Harberton is probably right about the failure to influence the fashions to any great extent. She has failed herself in establishing the dual skirt. If she had the courage to assume as a French lady explorer has done male attire, she could do so much more easily than she could appear in an ungainly divided skirt that has nothing to commend it but its eccentricity.

One of the most interesting articles in the current reviews is Mdlle Yetta Blaze de Bury's paper on the origin of the French opera. When one knows how depraved a thing it is in the ecclesiastical mind of the present day to uphold the opera and the ballet, it is somewhat a surprise to hear that it was under the auspices of the papal legate Cardinal Bichi and Father Bourgeois, a monk, that the Académie Royale de Musique was founded. Under their auspices and those of Cardinal Mazarin and Louis Fourteenth in 1646 twenty Italian musicians were invited to France under the leadership of Lingi Rossi, and in imitation of their opera Orfeo it was that Cambert produced his Eurydice in 1647, but not with the same success; for the comédie chantee—the conventional type of lyric drama, in which a personage mortally wounded, instead of bleeding to death, gives forth shakes and scales—was, according to Mdlle de Bury, so far removed from what is natural, or even what is considered natural on the stage, that some time elapsed before it became acceptable to French intelligence.

Mdlle Blaze de Bury does not keep too closely to her text—she is diffuse, she gives us little asides, tells little anecdotes of musical patrons, and gossips about things in general, so that the history of French opera which under other treatment would be a dry as dust affair to the British mind is very pleasant reading, besides furnishing data enough to confound a college of cardinals for anathematizing a creation of their great predecessors.

The Royal Society of British Artists, Suffolk Street, has, at present, open to the public, an exhibition of sketches, studies, and decorative design, which is as equally interesting to the critic, the collector, the teacher, and the student, as to the artist world in general. It is an exemplification of Darwinian evolution applied to modern English painting. There are pictures in every stage of development, from the earlist brush touches that evolve figures out of chaos, to the final sketch which shows the struggle for life, concluded by the survival of the fittest, among the many shadowy conceptions of the painters' imagination. In Walter Crane's studies for the "Bridge of Life" one can follow the many alterations he made in the position of the Angel of Death leaning over his victim in the barge, and judge for one's self how greatly the composition of the picture is improved and the structural strength enhanced, by the change of position. Burne-Jones's sketches for the Briar Rose are also full of interest and charm, the same grace and ease that characterizes his finished work pervading his slightest effort. Sir Frederick Leighton, P.R.A., also contributes some fine work in carefully finished designs for figures, and drawings of drapery done with a conscientious accuracy that would be disdained by a beginner. Of Mr. Watt's wondrous symbolism there are three specimens, and of Alma Tadema's genius one delightful little bit. Mr. Wyke Baillie's church interiors are also represented, and some striking effects on the river at Chelsea by the late Cecil Lawson fill one with regret for what he might have achieved in a longer life. Portraits and life-studies are in a minority, but there are a few cleverly put in heads in pastel and paint, and as there is no over-crowding, every thing looks to the best advantage. The exhibition is indeed above the average for the best artists have contributed, and the rising artists who are represented are generally seen at their best in the earlier stages of their painting—finishing up being a process that takes a life-time to acquire thoroughly.

A propos of English Art, the Duke of Marlborough appears this month in the New Review in the role of critic; not indeed so much as art critic, as a judge of art critics. He has been to the Academy and the Salon, and he very truly reports the difference between the appreciation of the British public and the French public, for the quality of pictures and their discrimination shown in their remarks. Comparing what he heard, a country clergyman and his daughter say at the Academy, and an artisan and his wife at the Salon, he draws deductions that are unfavourable to his fellow-countrymen as high art appreciators. His article is smart and shrewd, and amusing, and though he is too severe on English artists, and despises our national portrait-painting so utterly as to exclude all hope of our artists ever getting a commission to paint him, I must in justice say he is a keen and clever critic.

There has been such a doubt thrown on the power of women to attain as high a standard of education as men, that the women's mental capacity question is still widely discussed, and fresh instances are every day brought up to support the female claim to equality, if not superiority over her male rival. The latest additions to the list of women's successes have been conferred by the University of Brussels, which granted the M. D. degree to three English women-students who are all certified to have passed with honours. Jane Harriet Walker, M.D., who also won honors in London and Vienna, is physician to out-patients at the New Hospital for Women, Marylebone Road; Julia Cock, M. D., has a similar appointment, besides being Medical Inspector to the North London Collegiate School, and Agnes Henderson, M.D., is a young Aberdonian, whose future sphere of work is not yet announced.

***

At the London University Examination in Classics for the M. A. Degree Miss Violet Selby, Miss Edith L. Johns, and Miss Marian Sherratt stood respectively first, second, and third. It was reported rather triumphantly that all the lady-candidates passed, while one in five of the men failed; but this should not impress the unprejudiced public very deeply. Parents of the present day send only their clever girls to Universities, while they expect even their fifth-rate boys to take a degree, no matter how inadequate is their mental capacity, or how diverse their tastes may be. It is absurd under such circumstances to make comparisons; and this exceeding loud crowing of triumphant hens is very obnoxious, utterly silly, and the worst evidence in the world that woman's brain power is of a high standard. When all this excitement calms down, and girls are given equal chances with boys, and no favour, it will be probably found, that there is diversity of power—girls gaining in one way what they lose in another, and as regards results, it will be a case of six of one and half a dozen of the other.

***

This battle of the sexes is one of the stupidest that has ever engaged the human mind. We cannot—and if we confessed the truth, we do not wish, —to do without one another. Then let us put an end to jealousy as to our mutual perfections, and peacefully divide the world's occupations between us. There are thousands of men who would gladly surrender their rights of coaching dull fellows in Mathematics to Miss Philippa Fawcett, and would prefer the domestic serenity of hemming pocket handkerchiefs, rocking cradles, and fussing with the cook, which from the high altitude of Senior Wrangler must appear a despicable employment. Then there are women who not only enjoy handling a team of spirited horses, but in a lower grade delight in guiding the homely plough which sometimes palls on the manly soul. And there are men who would give their eyes to trim a bonnet, to fit a gown, to try their deft fingers on a new design in hair-dressing, which baffles the feminine artistic touch. Women have before now stormed and defended cities, navigated ships, worked in mines, and as decorators mounted cathedral scaffoldings—they have replaced men when necessary in the most arduous labours. Why should they be withheld from doing any part in the world's work they fancy—always provided that they do it well?

***

Fellow-men allow me to advise you—not as a mother, for this you would resent as implying a greenness in your youth; nor as a sister, for this you would scorn as an impertinence from an inferis or; nor as a wife, for this you would consider as an infringement of the conjugal vow to love, honour, and obey; but as an acquaintance who admires you as one of the chef d'oeuvres of the universe. Give your womankind their own way—there is nothing like it for bringing them to see the wisdom of yours. It was a man—I believe an Irishman, Sheridan—who gave this good advice which Frenchmen have adopted into their language:

"Les femmes nous gouvernent; tâchons donc de les rendre parfaites: plus elles auront de lumières, plus nous serons éclairés.

THE TREATMENT OF LEPERS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE "BOMBAY GAZETTE."

SIR,—In the interests of suffering humanity I beg to lay before the public my experiences about the cases of leprosy, which I have treated for the last one year and a half.

Black leprosy has several varieties, of which some are severe and some slight. Most of these varieties are curable, and very few incurable. I have treated three cases of leprosy, of which two are of severe forms, and one is of a slighter form. The patients suffering from the severe forms had had the disease for about three years. They have been under my treatment for one year; and they have been nearly cured. The patient who was attacked with the slighter form suffered from the disease for one year and a half. The whole of the skin of his face was swollen, and there were several blackish patches on his body raised over the skin. He has been under my treatment for seven months; and he has been entirely cured of the disease. He has taken my medicine regularly and properly observed the diet prescribed by me. The severe forms of the disease take much more time for cure than the slighter forms.

Two of the patients have not yet consented to my disclosing their names, but the patient who had suffered from the slighter form has given me a certificate. The name of the man is Mr. A. F. Batelho, an inhabitant of Koli-Kalliana.

The medicine I prescribe consists of some liquid prepared from indigenous drugs, and internally given in the form of drops, and also for application. Diet consists of milk, ghee, rice, wheat, pulse, and other vegetables. Animal food is prohibited.

I have often seen several poor beggars in the streets of Bombay suffering from both the severe and the slighter forms; and if men like Sir Dinshaw Manockji Petit and others support me, I shall treat them and try to relieve them from their bodily pain and distress.—Yours, &c.,

NARAYAN BHIKAJI.

GOA NEWS.

It is proposed, writes our Goa correspondent, to put all the convents in Old Goa in good order to afford accommodation to visitors who may be going to Goa for the exposition of the body of St. Francis Xavier, in December next.

Senhor Monsinho d'Albuquerque, the Chief Secretary to the Goa Government, is going to Portugal. It is said that he is a candidate for the Governorship of Timor. Senhor Albuquerque came out to India about three years ago as Chief Inspector of the Railway, and at the time of the inauguration of the Marmagoa Railway he was transferred to the post of Chief Secretary, as Senhor Cardozo de Carvalho, the Governor-General at that time, wished to pay a visit to his Excellency Lord Reay, and he had no European Secretary with him at the time. He will be succeeded by Senhor Fernando Leal, who is coming out from Portugal.

Mr. Pascoal Joao Gomes has been appointed to succeed the late Dr. Martinho Menezes as Advocate in Ilhas, and Mr. Pedro Antonio de Souza will take the place of Mr. Gomes in the Court of Bicholim.

THE UNCOVENANTED ENQUIRY.

THE Secretary of the Calcutta Central Committee of the European Uncovenanted Service Association sent the following telegram to the Bombay Committee yesterday:—

London message reports case fully submitted; impression favorable. Recommended closing enquiry without Indian witnesses. Central Committee consented. More by post.

THE statement in several papers that the Duke of Clarence's double title is intended as a compliment to Ireland, Truth declares to be rubbish and nonsense; and adds that Avondale is an old Scotch title which belonged to a branch of the Douglas family, and after it had been forfeited to the Crown in 1455, James III. gave it to Andrew Stewart of Albany, whose son was killed at Flodden Field, when the Avondale title became extinct, and it has never been heard of since until its revival in the person of Prince Albert Victor. If there is any "compliment" about the matter, it has been paid (as usual) to Scotland.

PREPARING FOR THE CENSUS.

THE preparations for the taking of the Census of 1891 are now being pushed forward with all speed throughout the country. The preliminaries are in a measure complete. The Bill which in the opinion of the local authorities was necessary to support the administration of the Census operations has been introduced and will soon become law, and the required instructions have been circulated amongst the Census officials in the various provinces, so that they know exactly what to do. As was mentioned in a previous article on the subject, the experiences of 1881 have aided those concerned in making the system of counting more complete, and the early commencement of preliminary operations this year should materially help to a more accurate enumeration in the end. For instance in 1881 an unsuccessful attempt was made to obtain a return of those who followed a particular occupation as distinguished from those dependent for their living upon others; but with efficient supervision it is intended to obtain a correct return of that, and more, at the forthcoming Census. As long ago as December last a proposal was made not only to obtain a return of those who worked, but of the means whereby those who did not work subsisted. But objection was taken to this on the ground that if they wanted an accurate enumeration at all, the precedent of 1881 must be followed, and even that with much more care and complete arrangements. Objection was also taken to it on the ground that confusion was sure to arise from the entry of women and children who did not work, as following the occupation of the head of a family; for as was found at the last Census, there was an irresistible tendency on the part of both enumerators and enumerated to return non-workers under the occupation upon which they were dependent. But this latter was one of the reasons for the Governor-General in Council carefully considering the proposal, and, recognising if such information could be compiled, what a great statistical improvement it would be, and considering that with due care there need be no difficulty about it, he determined to adopt the suggestion, and instructions have been issued accordingly. While, however, of opinion that an accurate preliminary return of the population to be enumerated should be obtained, Government left it to the Census Commissioner to prescribe the procedure to be followed with reference to this, and in our article of 21st June last it was explained how Mr. H. Brewin was performing the work in Bombay, and how from the house lists which are to serve as a check on the enumerators, a rough estimate will be obtained of the population before the night of the 20th February when the Census proper will be taken.

The preparations for the taking of the Census under the direction of Mr. Brewin are making rapid and satisfactory progress towards completion. Since the beginning of June, when operations were commenced, every house in B Ward, including Mandvie, Chuckla, Omercarry, and Dongri; in C Ward, including the Market, Dhobie Talao, Funneswady, Bhuleshwar, Coomarwada, and Khara Talao; and in E Ward, including the 2nd Nagpada section has been visited, and now he is busy with D Ward in the Khetwady section, which is nearly completed. It has already been explained how the wards had to be divided into sections, the sections into blocks, the blocks into houses, and the houses into tenements, but one really requires to see Mr. Brewin at his work to understand the difficulties to be contended against and overcome, the tediousness and discomforts to be put up with, and generally, the unenviable nature of his work. Already seven hundred and fifty blocks have been divided off, and many of the tenements in these blocks, in the Mandvie and Chuckla sections, the Market and Dhobie Talao sections, and the Camateepura and 2nd Nagpeda sections in the sixth ward have already been numbered. In fact the tenement numbering in all over a hundred blocks is finished, from which it will be understood the work is going on apace. The labour connected with this task is enormous, even to one who knows every street in the city. It requires a clear head, great care, and calculation to piece off those blocks in such a manner as they will contain each about five hundred residents; but so thoroughly does Mr. Brewin understand his work, showing that the Municipal Commissioner could not have recommended a better man to superintend the arrangements, that in a morning of six hours—from five o'clock to eleven—from twenty-five to thirty blocks are marked off, ready for his assistants who follow to complete, by numbering the houses and tenements.

A few mornings ago a member of the staff of the Bombay Gazette hunted up Mr. Brewin, and found him with book and pencil in hand, surrounded by a chattering group of men, women, and children, directing his assistants in their work. Having surveyed a block and calculated the number of residents therein, he proceeded to divide off the boundaries, which done, he called his painter to him, a young man appeared with a huge brush in his hand, accompanied by a boy who carried on his head a paint-pot, and the appearance of whose clothes conveyed the impression that that same paint-pot had more than once been emptied over him. Then the painter was ordered to begin at one corner of the block, and go all round it painting on most conspicuous parts of the walls the number of the block. This Mr. Brewin explained would enable the enumerator to do his part of the work without any difficulty. In fact one would consider it impossible for anyone to go astray or find his way into a neighbour's block with such large plain lettering staring him in the face. But to guard against any mistake, a body of police sepoys accompany Mr. Brewin on his morning perambulations. One sepoy surveys the block along with him, sees the numbering done, and is made thoroughly acquainted with all the entrances to every house. That sepoy will accompany the enumerator when the time comes, and take him round his block. This, considering the completeness and simplicity of the arrangements, may seem an unnecessary precaution, but it must be remembered that the enumerators will be drawn chiefly from amongst boys fresh from school, and who may never before have visited the locality in which the block allotted to them stands, and besides it is very important that not the slightest mistake be made.

It was very amusing to note the excitement of some of the poor natives whose houses were visited. On seeing Mr. Brewin busy with his note-book, and the painter putting his mark on the wall, they were fully under the impression that the house was being condemned, and was to be pulled down as unfit or unsafe for habitation. One poor old man came running up, and with hands trembling nervously and clasped over his forehead, salamed lowly and said with tears plainly visible in his eyes, "I am a poor man, leave my house alone." It took all Mr. Brewin's persuasive powers to assure him that he had no intention of demolishing the house, but that he only wanted to count how many people dwelt inside. This old fellow had no sooner departed smiling, than another came up holding his head high with an air of confidence and said, pointing to a house on the opposite side of the lane, "This house is very shaky, and should be pulled down; you had better mark it." No sooner was he dismissed than another appeared in an extraordinary state of excitement, and gave Mr. Brewin no peace until he consented to go with him. He good-naturedly humoured the man, and followed him up a narrow sweeper's gully to a back court. There the man pointed out a small, dirty-looking house which he informed the Sahib was his residence, and then he drew his attention to a high building towering over it with a tremendous rent in the gable from the eaves almost to the foundation. "If you do not take that house down," he said, "I and my family will be killed." A note was taken of it; but the man seemed greatly disappointed when Mr. Brewin left without doing any more. He evidently imagined the sepoys should have been set to work there and then, to pull down the cracked building, and free him and his family from what he imagined an impending danger. It is extraordinary how many questions and appeals of this sort have to be attended to in a morning.

But to return to the Census proper, it may be interesting to give some idea, by following the instructions to enumerators which have already been drawn out, what their work will be, and in what measure the general public will be expected to assist them in having the schedules accurately filled up. They will be required to make two rounds. First of all they will be furnished with books in which will be entered the numbers of the houses they are to visit, and opposite those houses they will have to enter every person residing there, all persons who ordinarily live or take their meals in those houses, even though they may at the time be absent, provided they are to be back to the house before the 26th February. Then at night-fall on the 26th they will again take their books, and visit every house in their block in order. The chief member of each family will be summoned, and the entries already made will be read over to him. Entries for persons who have departed or died will of course be struck out, and new entries be made if necessary for any who were not present on first visit, such as guests, infants newly-born, &c. According to the Census Act, every person is legally bound to furnish the enumerators with such information as is necessary for filling up the schedule.

Such are the arrangements, so far as they have gone, so that in Bombay at any rate the taking of the Census of 1891 should be as accurate as it is possible to make it.

A MAN, named Wickans, was found near Eastbourne a few days before the last mail left, with several nails in his head, and was taken to the Eastbourne Memorial Hospital, where he lay in a critical state. The medical staff there have never before had to deal with so extraordinary a case. Four nails were deliberately driven into the man's head three inches deep with a hammer, and were withdrawn by the doctors with great difficulty. It is stated that he had complained of pains in his head, and that in the absence of his wife he drove the nails in.

REVIEWS.

MR. C. RAMACHANDRIER, of the Madras Civil Service, originally Presidency Magistrate, Madras, and now serving as a District and Sessions Judge, being an officer of "proved merit and ability," appointed under Act X. of 1870, has already written a manual of Malabar Law and a treatise on the Indian Registration Act, and the manner in which he has prepared the works no wunder review leaves little to be desired. Both works, especially the former, are written from the stand-point of Madras; but the treatise on limitation has much that might be of interest to the profession generally. Mr. Iyer's object in publishing the book is, as he says, "to place within the reach of the Judges and the practitioners of India the decisions of all the High Courts in the country on the Law of Limitation, arranged under their appropriate sections and articles." In cases of conflicts in the decisions of different courts upon any one point, they have been enumerated in notes, and with a view to facilitate reference to rulings, the facts of cases have been given "many as abstracts and a few as extracts," while care has been taken to add "any important observations made by Judges on questions of construction and application." An introduction giving the object and tracing the history of the law of limitation in this country, a good list of cases and a very full index further add to the usefulness of the work, which we see has appropriately been dedicated to the Hon'ble Sir P. P. Hutchins, who was for long on the Madras Bench, and has since risen successively to the Madras and Viceregal Executive Councils.

MESSRS. MACMILLAN'S REPRINTS.

The exceedingly handy reprint of Green's "Short History of the English People," which has lately been brought out—a reprint so handy indeed that it claims almost to be called a pocket edition—is now completed in the fourth part, which covers the Revolution and the subsequent period down to the accession of the Disraeli Ministry in 1874. The feature of this edition, apart from its portability, is the excellent explanatory analysis by Mr. Tait, of Clifton College. It is not clear, however, why the analysis, which is one of the best that we have seen so far as it goes, does not go beyond the death of George the Fourth. Amongst others of Messrs. Macmillan's recent reprints are Mr. Sydney Colvin's "Keats," in the English Men of Letters Series; and Kingsley's "The Hermits" and "Glaucus," the last named a delightfully companionable book for the seaside naturalist.

AN ENGLISH ANTHOLOGY.

Dr. Bradshaw, of the Madras Education Department, has published a third edition of his English anthology. For comprehensiveness and convenience of arrangement no selection of English poetry that we know of can rival this admirable work. The chief feature of the present edition is that it includes selections from Tennyson, Lord Tennyson's publishers having recently waived their refusal to allow the editors of anthologies to draw upon the Laureate's works. Dr. Bradshaw's work has met with the approval of the Indian Universities and of the various Directors of Public Instruction of Bombay, Bengal, and Mysore, and its suitability for educational purposes in India has by this time been well tested.

BLACKIE'S ENCYCLOPÆDIA.

Blackie's Modern Encyclopædia has now reached its sixth volume, which brings the work to the word postulate. The editor may be congratulated upon having written it well up to date, the article "Portugal," for example, including a reference to the death of King Louis, and to the differences between England and Portugal on the Zambesi. Considering the dimensions of the work, it is singularly complete and concise. Though the articles are short they are free from baldness and belong, many of them, rather to literature than to compilation. The encyclopædist, for example, who could describe the Positive Philosophy in a page without caricaturing it must have a singular capability for his task, and this the writer has certainly done. There is no work of its proportion which shows equal merits to this latest amongst the encyclopædias.

MESSRS. GALE AND POLDEN'S MANUALS.

SINCE the last great war in Europe military science has been more assiduously studied than ever the case before, and the private soldier of to-day knows more of military duty than did the officer of half or even a quarter of a century ago. And if there is any credit due to the publishers of manuals which make the theory of warfare accessible to all ranks, and put that theory in a cheap as well as easily appreciable form Messrs. Gale and Polden may certainly claim a large meed of it. A batch of their books with the familiar red bindings lie before us. First among these is Captain Mayne's "Infantry Fire Tactics," in which the author skilfully treats one of the most important subjects, and offers a work which will be a boon, not only to officers preparing for examination, but will doubtless also find a permanent place in the library of every careful military student. "Field Fortification," by Major H. D. Hutchinson, Bengal Staff Corps, which has now become almost a military classic, is among them and that it is regularly chosen by officers preparing for c and d. "Military Administration for Volunteer Officers," by Captain H. Walker, West Riding Regiment, gives in a concise form the information a Volunteer Officer most requires and saves him the trouble of wading through a multiplicity of books and gleaning for himself exactly what he wants. "Skirmishing Attack and Defence" is one of the many works of Mr. Gordon, late Sergeant Major of the Scots Guards, who is doing the State excellent service by producing brief and simple textbooks for the education of the rank and file. "Battalion Drill made Easy" is another of these, and perhaps one of the most useful. "The Catechism of Military Training," by Major Fitroy Marryat, is so full of well-arranged matter that to learn it off by rote would ensure a successful examination. It teaches a soldier the duties which would devolve upon him when engaged in an enemy's country. The latter portion of the work, which is devoted to field fortification, is neatly illustrated. Included in the batch are several admirable works of various sizes on army signalling, and last but not least, valuable diminutive books in English, Marathi, and Persian, by "Marksman" a Bombay Officer, who treats most successfully of "How to improve shooting in the Ranks."

WHEELER'S INDIAN HISTORY.

Messrs. MACMILLAN & Co. have just published an admirable addition to their little History Primers, Indian History, Asiatic and European, by Mr. J. Talboys Wheeler, late Assistant Secretary to the Government of India in the Foreign Department, which begins with the Hindus before the Mahomedan conquest, and carries the story of Hindustan to the present year. Terse, easily digestible, and arranged conveniently for ready reference, the work would be worth its weight in silver, even with a one and seven penny rupee.

IMPORTANT QUESTION OF JURISDICTION.

DECISION OF A FULL BENCH IN THE ITALIAN MURDER CASE.

YESTERDAY the full Bench, composed of the Chief Justice, Sir Charles Sargent, the Hon. Mr. Justice Bayley, the Hon. Mr. Justice Telang, and the Hon. Mr. Justice Farran, reassembled at the High Court, to deliver their decision upon the plea of jurisdiction raised by the counsel for the defence on behalf of the Italian woman, Donat Angelo Constantino, who had been tried at the last Criminal Sessions on a charge of murder in causing the death of one Angelo Maldotti, on board the s. s. Bisagno, on the 6th instant, by stabbing him with a knife.

The question raised was, it will be remembered, referred by the presiding Judge, Mr. Justice Farran, for the decision of a full Bench before passing sentence

The Hon. Mr. Macpherson, instructed by the Public Prosecutor, appeared for the prosecution in support of jurisdiction, while Mr. Kirkpatrick, instructed by Messrs. Payne, Gilbert, and Sayani, appeared on behalf of the prisoner and in support of the plea raised by him.

The Chief Justice, in delivering the decision of the Court, said: This is a reference made under section 434 of the Code of Criminal Procedure by the Judge presiding at the recent Criminal Sessions, at which the accused, Donat Angelo Constantino, was indicted on a charge of murder by having caused the death of another Italian named Angelo Maldotti, on board the s. s. Bisagno, an Italian steamer of the Rubattino line, when lying in the Victoria Dock, on the 6th instant. He was found guilty by the jury, of culpable homicide not amounting to murder, and the Judge who presided reserved the question of whether the Court had jurisdiction to try and sentence a foreigner. As this offence was committed in the Victoria Dock, it is plain that, whether the dock be considered as a part of the main land which is covered with water, or as a continuation of the port, it was committed within "the island of Bombay or the limits thereof," over which the ordinary original jurisdiction of the High Court extends (the Queen vs. Esmh, Perry's Oriental Cases, 577). Two objections have, however, been taken to the jurisdiction—1. That the offence was committed on an Italian ship. 2. That the offence was committed by one of the crew against another who was not a British subject. The immunity of a foreign merchant vessel from the local jurisdiction came under the consideration of the Judges, necessarily in the case of the Franconia, reported in 2 Exchequer Division, and a perusal of the judgment delivered shows that whatever differences of opinion there may have been on the question then before the Court, viz., as to the nature of the jurisdiction which a state possesses over what is called the territorial sea extending to the distance of three miles along its coast, there was none whatever as to the jurisdiction which a state possesses over foreign merchant vessels when lying in its ports. I will refer to two or three of those judgments in particular. Sir Robert Phillimore, at page 23 of the Law Reports, Exchequer Division, in the case of Queen vs. Keyn, says—"A foreign merchant vessel, going into the port of a foreign state, subjects itself to the ordinary law of the place during the period of her comorancy there; and is as much a subditus temporarius as the individual who visits the interior of the country for the purpose of pleasure or business." Mr. Justice Lindley at page 93 says—" It is admitted that a foreign merchant ship which enters the ports, harbours or rivers of England, become subject to English law. But so-called territoriality does not in that case exclude the operation of English law." Lord Justice Cockburn at page 161 says—" On board a foreign ship on the high seas, the foreigner is liable to the law of the foreign ship only. It is only when a foreign ship comes into the ports or waters of another state that the ship and those on board become subject to the local law. These are the established rules of the law of nations. They have been adopted into our own municipal law, and must be taken to form a part of it." These views, I may also mention, which are mainly based on the writings of the most eminent of the earlier authors on international law, from the time of Vatel, are regarded as well established, and placed beyond all doubt, by more modern writers on the subject, such as Wheaton, Forsyth and Hall. The case of Cunningham in Bell's Criminal Cases, page 72, where a murder was committed on board an American ship when in the Severn, is sufficient to illustrate the statement of Lord Justice Cockburn that the rule as above enumerated had been adopted in our own municipal law. The case of Queen vs. Anderson, 1, Crown Cases, and Regina vs. Allen, 1, Moody Cr. Cases, 194, referred to by the counsel for the accused, have no application to the present question. They relate to the question how far the "high seas" extend, on which it is not disputed a foreign ship retains its nationality, and all persons on board are considered as within the jurisdiction of that nation whose flag is flying on the ship. It was said, however, that it was not the practice of France and other states to exercise their jurisdiction (see Hall on International Law, page 199) where the acts relate solely to the internal discipline of the vessel, or even crimes and lesser offences committed by one of the crew against another when the peace of the port is not affected, distinguished from crimes and offences committed upon or by persons not belonging to the crew, or even by members of it upon each other, provided, in the latter case, that the peace of the port be compromised; and this Court was asked to act upon that principle. The principle of international law relied on was referred to by Sir Robert Phillimore in his judgment in the following terms:—" It may be that the foreign state, influenced by considerations of public policy or by treaty of obligations, chooses to forego the exercise of her law over the foreign vessel and crew, or exercises it only when they disturb the peace and good order of the port." In other words, the state considerately distinguishes between the two classes of cases, and declines the jurisdiction which of right belonged to it in one of those classes. Mr. Forsyth, in his work alluding to this distinction, says it has never been adopted by the English Courts. It was also contended that there is no actual case to be found which is in accordance with such a limitation of the jurisdiction. It was pointed out that in the Cunningham case it is affirmatively stated that the murdered man Riley was an American. This is true, although, being one of the crew of an American ship, it is probable that Riley was regarded as an American, and that the case was dealt with on that assumption. But assuming that the question is one of direct authority and that there may even be good reason for such distinction, this Court cannot, in the absence of any legislative enactment or consular convention between England and Italy, limiting the exercise of the jurisdiction, as contended for, take upon itself to qualify a jurisdiction which, by the very principle on which it rests, is exclusive and absolute, and we must therefore answer the question referred to us, in the affirmative.

Mr. Justice Bayley made a few remarks and concurred with the Chief Justice; the other Judges also concurring.

THE PRISONER SENTENCED.

On the rising of the full Bench, Mr. Justice Farran taking his seat, addressed the prisoner as follows:—The jury have taken a merciful, but I think a just, view of your case. They have found that you did not intend to cause the death of Angelo. Although you must be taken in law to know the natural and probable result of your act, yet I think that, in fact, you did not apprehend the excessive danger of the stab you inflicted. I take that circumstance into consideration. I also take into consideration all the occurrences which took place on the 5th instant, and agree with the jury that you, at the time of your act, were deprived of self-control by very grave and sudden provocation. I also have regard to the fact that you have always been of a peaceful and quiet disposition, and that your officers have borne testimony to your excellent character. Taking these facts into consideration and bearing in mind the strong recommendation of the jury to mercy, I consider that I am justified in passing upon you the lenient sentence of one year's rigorous imprisonment.

The prisoner was then removed from the dock, and the sessions were formally dissolved.

A FRONTIER difficulty has been adjusted between France and Italy in the most agreeable of all ways—by a banquet, in fact. The French and the Italians were conducting military manœuvres each in sight of the other on their own territory, near Saint Martin-Vesubie, and the officers mutually broke off operations in the field, and fraternised as far as possible on the frontier line. That is to say, that the Italians could not cross into French territory, nor the French into Italian territory; but each nationality saluted the other with a full measure of decorum. Luncheon was proposed, and, in spite of the difficulties of frontier, was carried out satisfactorily, the Italians remaining on the Italian side of the table and the French on the French side. Presumably there was no frontier ban upon the clinking of glasses, and very likely the waiters were exempt from customs search in passing from guest to guest. Would that all frontier difficulties were susceptible of an adjustment so clamelessly amicable.

THE Duke of Marlborough does not mince matters in expressing his contempt for English contemporary art. Referring, we presume, to the Duke's article in the New Review for July, the Daily News says:—"Sir F. Leighton, Mr. H. H. Moore, Mr. Swan, and a few animal painters only excepted, he doubts whether a collection of modern English pictures could be sold at all in a Continental auction-room. 'Millais, Watts, Burne-Jones, Orchardson, and various other artists' are, it is admitted, able to command high prices; but this is attributed to the fact that in our large manufacturing towns there are a few enthusiasts with money who, 'under the advice of one or two of our Bond Street prophets,' are willing to buy anything. Put them up for sale abroad, says the Duke, alongside works by Cazin, L'Hermitte, and others, 'and see what the foreigners would say to them. . . . Our portrait-painters fare no better at his Grace's hands. 'Who,' he asks, 'except an Englishman of mature years, would ever go to Sir J. Millais to Herkomer, to Orchardson, or even the late F. Hall, to be painted? And when we come to the Colliers, the Hallés, the Shannons, I simply ask, Will any human being, male or female, ever cross the Channel to be painted by one of these English artists?"

THE German painter, Kroner, has nearly finished two life-size portraits of the Emperor William, one of which represents him in the uniform of the Garde du Corps, and the other in that of the First Regiment of the Guards. It is understood that one of these pictures is intended for the Queen, and that it will be hung at Windsor Castle.

LOOKING through Mr. Justice Stephen's Digest of the Criminal Law, a contemporary was struck by a passage which shows at what a prosaic pass we have arrived. He refers to the fact that in defending prisoners, counsel never become eloquent. This must surely be since the days of the late Mr. Ribton. But, says the author, "it is impossible to be eloquent in the sense of appealing to the feelings without more or less falsehood."

AT the suggestion of the Archbishop of Canterbury, a resolution has been proposed and accepted at a meeting in Durham to the effect that "it is desirable that the members of both Houses of Parliament connected with Durham should be requested to procure the appointment of a royal commission to inquire into the increased evils of betting and gambling." As has been pointed out more than once in these columns, the Law Journal remarks, the judge-made law of the Court of Appeal in Read vs. Anderson, 53 Law J. Rep. Q. B. 532, is in no slight degree the cause of the increase of betting. Could not the Archbishop of Canterbury, as a peer of Parliament, see his way to introducing a bill in the House of Lords to bring back the law to the state in which it was

CHARLES XII OF SWEDEN.

IN the current number of the Nineteenth Century His Majesty the King of Sweden and Norway concludes his memoir of Charles XII of Sweden. Summing up the character of his illustrious predecessor King Oscar writes:—

No Swede has ever met adversity with more stoicism than Charles the Twelfth; none ever remained so calm in prosperity and so undazzled by the temptations of success and glory. These qualities although sometimes carried too far and to fatal lengths, must nevertheless be admired. They rested pre-eminently on a religious foundation. An earnest fear of God, a warm and ardent faith, as well as pure morals, were the fruits of a mother's care; they were well sustained and developed in manhood through an assiduous study of the Word of God. The righteousness of his character scarcely ever failed to show itself. Even if we from our modern point of view, should have wished for a softer temper on occasions, one cannot call Charles hard, far less cruel. Charges of cruelty have not been wanting, but generally they have emanated from by no means disinterested quarters, and they are still unproved. It is a fact that he had forbidden the employment of torture, even when the highest law-officers of the realm advised it, and from this we may conclude that Charles was, in certain respects, more humane than his contemporaries. In contrast to many of the most eminent men of his age, he evinced the clearest unselfishness. Here, too, is a story which shows that Charles the Twelfth was not wanting in humour. Amongst those who prayed for exemption from one of the many conscriptions were the gardeners in the park at the royal castle of Calberg, and the Governor seems especially to have endorsed their petition, under the impression that it would be granted at once, they being the king's servants. But in answer Charles' secretary writes: 'His Majesty sarcastically remarked that "it is better for the gardeners to prevent any Russian gardeners from coming over to attend to their gardens, which, from want of soldiers, might occur."'

Charles the Twelfth has been called a misogynist, but this is unjust. He was far from entertaining such unnatural feeling. In the correspondence with his younger sister, Ulrica Eleonara, still extant, he shows on every page a true brotherly affection, which does not even desert him when 'Monocear,' as he called her listened to his enemies, and with her name and rank strengthened the opposition party against her brother and lawful king. The ladies of the court are often mentioned in his letters with familiar or pet names, and he frequently sent them his greetings. Moreover, we have stories of his visits to Polish Mansions, which depict in touching language the bearing of the thoughtful, simple, and almost bashful young King.

The news of the death of his eldest and most beloved sister, Hedvig Sofia, Duchess of Holstein, reached the Swedish camp a few days before the battle of Pultawa; but, as the king was at that time wounded, no one dared to communicate the sad intelligence, so as not to excite him, as he first knew of it after the crossing of the Dnieper. What all the great misfortunes following one upon the other had not succeeded in effecting this tiding of sorrow did: Charles shed bitter tears, and did not speak to anyone for a whole day. He therefore owned a deep love for his kin, and he could entertain affection even for enemies. But sensual desires seems to have been an utterly strange feeling to this angular warrior-prince. The seductive beauty of Aurora Konigsmark made an altogether opposite impression upon him to that anticipated and intended.

To manly friendship his mind was very susceptible. Perhaps the most touching example of this is shown in his relation with the so-called 'Little Prince,' Max Emanuel of Wurtenberg, a warm admirer and faithful companion during adventurous fights and expeditions of many years. For his courtiers, body guard, and servants he entertained sincere attachment and undisguised sympathy, although at times concealed by a somewhat severe exterior. Even towards his enemies he willingly showed forbearance, of which his placable conduct towards the opposition after his return from Turkey is proof. But if anyone had ever incurred his deep displeasure through deceitful or dishonourable conduct he was difficult to soften, and his severe sense of right and wrong insisted upon a punishment which he regarded as proportionate to the crime. For this reason he refused the many petitions for the pardon of Patkull.

His mode of expression was brief and to the point, his orders plain, except at Pultawa, when the fever from the wound had reduced the strength and obscured the clearness of thought.

When his sword was sheathed, reading constituted his most favourite occupation. Besides religious works he delighted most in our ancient Viking Sagas and the classics, and during his lengthy stay in Turkey he became very fond of chess, a game in which he is said to have acquired extraordinary skill.

Much of what we know of the character of Charles the Twelfth entitles us to assume that, if he had succeeded in gaining for the country a happy peace, according to his own mind, he would in a more peaceful sphere have shone as brilliantly as in the storm of battle, and, if he had not been entrusted at such an early age with the dangerous sceptre of absolutism, and if he had not been carried away so far from home by the mighty tide of events, that his rule would have been as beneficial to the people, whose weal and woe Providence had entrusted to him, as though glorious feats of arms and terrible calamities it proved to be the reverse.

Finally, let us glance at the external appearance of this remarkable man, his personification, as it were of Swedish chivalry and nobility, as it is preserved in the statue reared to his memory in the heart of his birthplace, by the banks of the stream which roars round the foot of his sarcophagus.

The face bore the cast distinguishing the family of the house of Pafalz-Zweibrucken. No one who looks at the fiery deep blue eyes, the high forehead—the home of daring thoughts—the slightly aquiline nose, the marked, almost obstinate lines round the beardless mouth, could for a single moment doubt but that his was no ordinary personality. In direct opposition to a custom prevalent in an age from which he differed so widely in other respects, Charles never wore a wig from the time that he came of age in that memorable moment when, outside Carlshamn, he stepped on board to set out on his long campaigns, he threw it over board, and since then the auburn, but soon somewhat thinned, locks were free to wave about the high-born head. He was not above six feet in height, but he was well made and slight, whilst his body, which dissipation had not weakened, enjoyed unbroken health, and was able to sustain the most incredible privations and hardships. His diet was a simple one; he rested on straw after the exertions of the day. During his campaigns he only allowed himself a few hours sleep a day, and he was often found at work again by his table at two o'clock in the morning. His dress was Swedish in cut and colour. All of us are familiar with his blue coat, the turned-down collar and the great amount of buttons, the buff waistcoat and black gravat, the rough felt hat and the high heavy riding-boots with their huge steel spurs. Outward signs of his position and rank he never wore. No medal for valour or any order adorned his breast, but within was concealed the most precious gem, the pulsating brave heart of a soldier, and in his hand gleamed the sword of which the Swedish 'Order of the Sword' must be regarded as a precious symbol.

Such is the portrait of Charles the Twelfth. What renders it so captivating in Swedish eyes? What has made him so dear to memory throughout the whole land, in spite of all the misfortunes which attended his reign, in spite of the errors of which it is impossible to acquit him? This is the reason: because, with his faults as well as his merits, Charles the Twelfth stands forth as a true son of his Mother Svea. A mother willingly shuts her eyes to the errors of a son and keeps his failures a secret, but she testifies rejoicingly to his good and great qualities, delights in his successes, and is proud of his fame and glory.

The era of Charles the Twelfth is no more. A younger generation dwells in the land which saw these heroes born. It sometimes happens that succeeding generations depreciate what the preceding one held great and dear. It is useless to deny that the drift of time changes many characteristic traits in a people; but as long as Sweden is free, as long as her sons do not forfeit the freeborn inheritance of their fathers, as long as nobility and manly courage, faith and virtue still reign in old Mashem, so long all that concerns 'King Charles, the young hero' of our ballad will be held dear and sacred by his countrymen.

On the 31st of August, 1859, another King Charles stood surrounded by some of the highest in the land in the Cathedral of Riddarholmen, in the Carolingian vault, by the side of the open sarcophagus of his renowned namesake. A conscientious examination is narrated on this occasion how groundless were all the suspicions that our hero fell by the hand of an assassin. Let us thank God for the certainty that his life, so full of great deeds, had a better end, for him, more worthy ending.

I, too, was fortunate enough to be permitted to glance at the remains of this remarkable man, before whom Europe once trembled, and above whose blanched temples numerable trophies float high up in the dome, so eloquent in their silence. The moment is as memorable for me as it was solemn and the features of Charles the Twelfth are deeply impressed on my mind. Leave was given me to break off a leaf of the laurel wreath which was shadowed his forehead and to cut off a lock of his hair, in remembrance of the day. To these treasures I can add two more symbols of Charles, namely, one of the trusty swords with which he so often fought his way to victory, and his Bible, from the pages of which he derived those precepts that impart strength in all his vicissitudes, and which are so beautifully expressed in the famous old war-cry of the Carolingians "With God's help!"

BITS FROM THE MAGAZINES.

WERE MAN A SALMON!

THERE are several excellent articles in Macmillan's Magazine. The quotation below is from a delightful chat about angling by Mr. G. W. Hartley, under the title "A Forty-Pound Salmon." Mr. Hartley describes the capture of his forty-pounder on the Awe in a manner that every angler will appreciate. How the great fish almost defied the writer and the keepers and how, once in the deep pool, the salmon occasioned a world of perplexity and anxiety! "Ah!" continues the writer, "if a salmon only knew his own strength! I have often thought that if for his sins a man was turned into such a creature what fun he might have. There was once a wicked man fishing on the Orchy. The river had been in bad condition all the week; on a Saturday it was rather big, and all men knew that the next day it would be perfection. 'It's always so,' growled an old General, who had to leave on the Monday. 'We ought to keep the Jewish Sabbath up here.' These were idle words, but the man above mentioned believed in deeds. He said he would walk home; he hid his rod on the bank, and on the Sunday, when the rest of his brethren were grumbling at the bridge of Orchy, and spending their time in throwing stones into the river, he was seven miles up the glen. The fish he got was laid in hiding also, and the next day produced as a legitimate Monday's salmon, and the whole business might have remained unknown except to his own wicked heart if the fox-hunter of the district—a man who used to keep his eyes open—had not spied the whole performance from the hillside. Supposing such a one, in punishment for his sins, was to be changed into a fish, what a life he might lead! What chance would the most skilful angler, armed with the strongest tackle, have against him! What sport to take the fly, to lead its owner a mad race down the river, and then—when the latter was carefully reeling in, and thought the prize was his own—to swim two or three times round a stone, and quietly sit there with tail at nose! It would be delightful too, when other ignorant fish were inclined to rise, to come out from one's hiding-place, and lash the whole pool into foam before the astonished eyes of the fisherman. One or two fish of this sort would soon frighten away the keenest sportsman from a beat."

ICELAND.

In Murray's Magazine, among several very interesting articles, is one in which Miss Stevenson recommends Iceland to the tourist. She writes:—There is no country in the known world where volcanic eruptions have been so numerous as in Iceland, or have been spread over so large a surface. No part of the isle is wholly free from the marks of volcanic agency; and it may be truly called the abode of subterraneous heat. Vesuvius is dwarfed into insignificance by the twenty volcanics of Iceland, all of them larger. The lava flood at the last eruption in Iceland, 1875, has been computed to contain 31,000 millions of cubic feet, while the largest eruption of Vesuvius on record, that of 1794, only threw out 730 millions of cubic feet of lava. Some of the Icelandic lakes are studded with volcanic isles miniature quiescent Stramboli, whose craters rise from bases green with a prolific growth of angelica and grasses. Even in the bosom of the sea, off the coast, there are hidden volcanoes. About the end of January 1783, flames were observed rising from the sea, about thirty miles off Cape Reykjanes; they lasted several months until a terrible eruption commenced 200 miles away, in the interior, when they disappeared. A few years ago rocks and isles emerged from the sea in this place. Another volcanic feature is the Solfatara valleys, plains studded with a number of low, cone-shaped hillocks from whose tops jets of steam ascend. In other places boiling mud issues from the ground, six to eight feet into the air, as in New Zealand. Standing on the feeble crust where literally fire and brimstone are in incessant action, having before your eyes terrible proofs of what is going on beneath you, enveloped in vapours, your ears stunned with noises, is a strange sensation. As to the hot springs those in Reykjadal, though not the most magnificent, are perhaps the most curious among the numerous phenomena of this sort in Iceland. On entering the valley you see columns of vapour ascending from different parts of it. There is a number of apertures in a sort of platform of rock. The water is at 212 degs. Fahr., and it rises two to three feet into the air. There is no country in Europe where such good sport with the gun and the rod is obtainable free as in Iceland.

A TIBETAN LADY.

In the Contemporary Review, under the heading "A Journey to the Capital of Tibet," Mr. Graham Sandberg describes the experiences of the Babu Sarat Chandra Das, on his recent mission to the famous and sacred city of Lhasa. The Babu records an interesting conversation he had with Lhacham, a Tibetan lady, in her town house. "When," he says, "I related to her that in India sometimes one husband had several wives while the Piling-pa (English) and enlightened natives had only one, she stared at me with wonder. "One wife with only one husband,' she exclaimed, in comic surprise. 'Do you not think that we Tibetan women are happier than the Indian or Piling women, of whom the Indian is the most miserable? Now, 'Pray tell me,' said I, 'is it not inconvenient for one wife to have so many husbands?' 'I do not see,' observed Lhacham, 'how Indian women can possibly be as happy as the Tibetan women are. The former have to divide among many the affection and the property of their one husband, whereas in Tibet the housewife, one woman, is the real mistress of all the joint earnings and inheritance of several brothers. These, her husbands, being sprung from the same mother, are undoubtly sons of the same father, and have the same blood, and bones. There persons are one though their souls may be different.' After dinner Lhacham asked me if I would be presented to her chief husband, the Shabpe, to whom she said, she had already made mention of me." Other contributors to this Review are Mr. E. Bellamy, the Rev. Benjamin Waugh, M. Gabriel Mond, Dr. Thomas M. Dolan, Mr. Sidney Webb, Mr. Joseph Pennel, Mr. John Rae, Mr. E. N. Buxton, and Mr. Andrew Johnston, chairman of the Essex County Council.

THE LIFE OF A POLICEMAN.

At a time when the Metropolitan police are engaging so much attention, the Leisure Hour appears opportunely with an article by W. J. Gordon, describing "The Everyday Life of a Policeman." It is an exceedingly informative paper, and may prove of great value to prospective candidates for the London force. "The men," it is told, "are of no particular class; a good many of them are sons of agricultural labourers; some—limited in number—500 out of 14,000—have served in the army. Nearly all the mounted police are old cavalry men. . . . The everyday life of a policeman can hardly be called monotonous. From the outset he is supposed to be a walking cyclopædia, and he never knows what is coming next. He must always be on the alert. He may have to make an arrest—75,000 arrests by the London police in a year; or attend a fire—1,000 fires attended by the police in a year; or carry a lunatic box at a weary distance; or serve a summons—134,000 summonses served in a year; or take a man to the hospital—6,300 people taken to the London hospitals by policemen in the year!"

A STUDY OF MR. GLADSTONE.

THE subject of "Studies in Character" in the New Review, is Mr. Gladstone. In the course of his article the writer says:—"In Mr. Gladstone's character several seemingly inconsistent qualities are combined, and it is curious to note in a temperament so highly emotional, imaginative, and even theatrical, a strong cross-current of business-like instinct. Those who prescribe in matters of race and pedigree might be inclined to suggest that Mr. Gladstone owes the ideal elements of his nature to his mother's Celtic ancestors, and the practical elements of those shrewd burghers of Leith and farmers of Lanarkshire from whom, through his father, he descends. But, however this may be, Mr. Gladstone's taste for commercial enterprise is as clearly marked a feature of his character as his rhetorical fervour or his dialectical subtlety." The writer expresses the view that "the dignity, the verve, the simplicity, and, above all, the fervent and manly piety of Mr. Gladstone's daily life form a spectacle far more impressive than his most magnificent performances in Parliament or on the platform. He is the idol of those who are most closely associated with him, whether by the ties of blood, of friendship, or of duty; and perhaps it is his highest praise to say that he is not unworthy of the devotion which he inspires."

FRENCH DISHES IN THE OLDEN TIME.

Some curious information on the manner of living in past centuries is to be found in Madame Darmesteter's article in the Fortnightly Review on French workmen. In the fourteenth century the taste of the rich in their food was as fantastic as their taste in dress. "No simple flavour was allowed to reign unblended. Their capons gilded yellow with yolk of egg and saffron, their pastier tinctured 'vert-gay' with crushed and powdered herbs, their jellies coloured blue with sunflower seed and blazoned in gold leaf with device or coat of arms, were heightened with a variety of spices and sharp flowers that perplex a modern palate Ginger, cinnamon, nutmeg and zedoaria-nut, cubebs cloves and galanga, mace, saffron, with vinegar or verjuice, laurel leaves and violets, quinc seeds and cherry stones were in all, for instance, items in the flavour of an aspic of fresh-water fish, which was served with a garnish of pomegranates, white violet flowers, sprigs of bay, and many-coloured dragées. Nearly all the dishes in the 'Grand Viandier' and the 'Ménagier de Paris' are equally elaborate; there are spices in the civet of oysters, spices in the mayonnaise or froideasage of fowl. To wine and to meat, to biscuit and omelette, some hidden clove, some shred of cinnamon or galanga, imparted that warm breath of Oriental spice without which nothing seemed delicious to the sons of the Crusaders. Yet at this time the price of these ingredients (imported from Egypt, Asia, Tripoli, and Ceylon) was not less than 11s. the pound. The epiciers or grocers of Paris were among the most influential and the richest of the shopkeepers."

MRS. JOPLING AT HOME.

Frederick Dolman describes "Mrs. Jopling at Home" in the Woman's World, giving an interesting account of her singularly successful career, and concluding by saying: "Painting's gain may have been the stage's loss, but the one art could not so well spare a gifted woman as the other; for with Lady Butler and Rosa Bonheur, Mrs. Jopling can claim to have taken a part in unlocking the gates of that paradise of beauty and colour at which the Peri for some time knocked in vain." Fashion articles and other feminine attractions abound in the number. The magazine is as always excellently illustrated.

IF, observes a writer in a home paper, one might choose between being very handsome with tolerable manners, and being plain with a fine, well-modulated voice and better manners than ordinary, one would wisely prefer the latter. We do not feel the charm of well-taught speech, because it is so seldom heard. But once felt, it has a spell which lingers in the mind for ever. The beauty of the face strikes the eye; the tone of the voice

A GLANCE AT CONTEMPORARY GREECE.

THE whole question of Crete, says the Fortnightly Review, must be considered as a mere episode in the development of a great movement, which might be retarded and not forthcoming for the part of Greece. M. Trikoupes goes so far as to look upon the Cretan difficulty as the outcome of a scheme deliberately formed by Turkey for the destruction of Hellenism, and he is determined not to be led into the trap prepared for him. He holds that Turkey provoked the rising of last autumn with the object of withdrawing the privieges assured to Crete by the Berlin Treaty, and that she would have been delighted to have seen Greece, unaided and alone, take part in the struggle. But the time was inopportune for such a struggle, and the Greek Government did all that was possible to prevent further disorders, even going so far as to induce the Cretans not to resist the introduction of a large Turkish force into the island. It is true that M. Trikoupes, when the atrocities were at their height, for once abandoned his attitude of reserve by sending a circular to the Powers, threatening Greek interference if they would not take action. Whatever may be thought of the wisdom of this course, M. Trikoupes contends that it had the effect of mitigating the horrors for a time. The Government is in a position of extreme difficulty. It is daily confronted with the misery of three thousand homeless exiles, and the groans of an afflicted Greek race can almost be heard across the sea but for the shrieks of infuriated patriots at home. The position which the Government now takes up is reasonable and intelligible. It asks that a complete amnesty should be accorded by the Porte, and that the military tribunals in Crete should be abolished. If these demands were acceded to, it would undertake to induce the refugees to return. It no longer asks for the withdrawal of the firman, although its promises dictate the twenty-third article of the Berlin Treaty. The Porte has replied by a general invitation to the refugees to return, which, however, excludes sixteen names; but martial law still exists, and the exiles, though promised immunity as regards the past, are afraid of being brought before the military tribunals on fresh charges. The Porte is countenanced by Germany in its refusal to go further; and Germany has just succeeded in concluding a commercial treaty with Turkey on exceptionally favourable terms. It is the old story of the Eastern question; the weak and struggling must be sacrificed to the interests of the strong.

But the time is short; already the snows are disappearing from the mountains, and in a few weeks Crete will be the scene of another insurrection. The Cretan committee at Athens is receiving subscriptions from Italy, from all parts of Europe, and even from America. It is ominous that great activity prevails at the Russian Legation. The Greek Government, while carefully abstaining from helping the fugitives, will throw no obstacle in the way of their obtaining food and provisions. Its views the future with alarm, but it will nevertheless wish them Godspeed. They have already cost Greece nearly a million drachmæ. Is it not time for the friends of Turkey to suggest to her that, after all, she would be an infinitely stronger power without Crete? Would Greece be able to find money to buy the island? Would she be able to rent it, as we rent Cyprus, and to let the Cretans as she takes herself and as we let the Cretans? Would she be able to check the vengeance of the Christians? Perhaps so, for many of their enemies would emigrate; the Mussulmans often prefer emigration to revolt, and those who remain become loyal, as in Bulgaria. The Cretan leaders whom I have met are all for annexation to Greece. They care no longer for reforms or for the revocation of the firman. Some of them are wild mountaineers in their picturesque native costume, whose title to distinction consists in the number of Turkish lives they have taken with their own hand; others are ex-deputies, judges, and professors, men of high intelligence and cultivation, who are now living penniless at Athens, supported by the Government.

The final decision was taken the other day. The exiles assembled in the ancient Stadion, and the scene as I looked down from the thyme-grown slope—once so often thronged by the multitude of brilliant Athens—was interesting and impressive. The invitation of the Turkish Government was discussed and definitely refused, after two or three leaders had addressed the meeting, one of them speaking with indignation concerning certain recent declarations in the British House of Commons. Then the whole assembly, with uplifted hands, swore the oath of the War of Independence——freedom or death. There was no enthusiasm or excitement, nothing but quiet determination. The crowd broke into little groups, and as they walked away I could see them shake their heads. The rock fortress of Egina watched to see his son returning from his Cretan triumphs, and the monuments of a race that rescued Europe from the dominion of Asia. It was evening—such an evening as Byron describes in those sumptuous lines of "The Corsair"—and I turned my steps towards the Acropolis. The sun was sinking in a cloudless heaven behind the purple hills of the Morea; Hymettus and Pentelikon were radiant in violet and crimson, and the crest of Parnes, still silvered with the winter snows, looked down through a rose-coloured haze upon the dusky olive-groves of Kolonus. A flood of golden light was falling on the columns of the Propylæa and the Parthenon, causing them to glow with a rich mellowness of colouring as though in harmony with the pageant of nature around. The quiet of the sunset hour seemed to accord with the melancholy which haunts these noble monuments of human genius—more lovely in this, the evening of their decline, than in the noontide blaze of their perfection—more lovely, because more speaking and suggestive in the stillness and solitude of their decay. As I turned to depart I paused by the brink of the western cliff, whence the Temple of Wingless Victory looks out across land and sea to the shore of unconquered Salamis. The stones of its ruined fabric have been collected, and joined together with reverent care; its fallen columns have been raised, and though its sculptured friezs is broken and defaced, though its marble walls show many a gap, and it has no roof but the deep blue sky, it stands a type of living beauty amid surrounding desolation. And so it seemed to me that a much-tried race, sundered and shattered in ages of adversity, may yet be compacted into one harmonious structure, which may reflect, if it cannot revive, the splendour of a historic past.

AN UNPUBLISHED LETTER OF CARLYLE.

THERE is in possession of Mr. Robert Thomson Thornhill an unpublished letter of Thomas Carlyle, addressed by him to his wife while she was staying with Dr. Russell in Thornhill, and suffering from illness. It reveals the writer in an amiable domestic light. We append the letter in extenso:—

Chelsea (Tuesday), July 27, 1864.

Dearest,—It was well they kept their Pharisaic Sabbath, and prevented yr. telling me, what would not have lightened the gloom of mind. Oh dear! Oh dear!—and but little sleep yet, in spite of all the chloroform and all the kindness! Nevertheless, I will on to yr. milk, to yr. dietings, to yr. bathings, under Dr. B's. direction and the kind lady's nursing. What strange old days (sunk like old ages) you look out upon from yr. windows there my poor little heavy-laden woman! Yes; but it is for ever true "The Eternal rules above us," and in us and round us; and this is not Hell or Hades, but the "Place of Hope"—the Place where what is right will be fulfilled! And you know that too in yr. way, my own little Jeannie—and you will not and must not forget it; forgetting it one might go mad.

I think with you of Dr. Russell, that his advice is probably worth more than that of all the doctors you have yet had. A sound-headed, honest hearted man, passing his life in silent company with facts, earnestly studying Disease at a thousand bedsides, with an eye only to knowing and helping it—what a diffn. man from one, or from a thousand ones, who are always "on the stage," and have no time to think of anything except of clap-trap, and how they shall get a reputation in a totally stupid world! I beg him very much to survey and investigate your case, and throw what light on it he can. Darkness he will not throw on it; I suppose there is but little "light" except what our own common sense might lead us to. "Time and the hours," which wear out the roughest day, are what I have looked to from the first.

This morng. at Ann Craik stole out softly as a dream. I heard her, having been awake and smoking, but said nothing. She has been perfect, poor little soul; nevertheless I am glad to be in perfect solitude; rather I intend to work with double energy; no other resource for me to keep the demons chained in their caves. I have this note from Craik since she went—hardly read it. I had given her the Bank viaticum last night, wh. she protested was too, &c., &c.; but all in a modest natural way. The Poulterer, &c., were discovered to be right, and to-day I have paid accordingly. Every Monday I am to count and reckon; and will. The girls look fairly promising; and I do not fear mischance on that side. My floor (bedroom) is stripped bare, bed ld. off; extremely cool and clean [two words undecipherable] does me no damage. Where cd. I be better—were my poor sick Dear back to me, as by God's blessing she will be, perhaps a little better were the heat gone somewhat. Don't mind writing me above a word when you feel weary; one word (as you say) to keep away worse. Heaven grant it be a good one to-morrow. Adieu, my own dear Jeannie.

COMPARATIVE STRENGTH OF MEN AND WOMEN.

IN Paris a well-known anthropologist has recently carried out a series of experiments—by means of a specially devised instrument—which go to show clearly the average comparative strength of the two sexes of humanity. On this strength-testing instrument the palm of the hand is placed, and then the greatest downward pressure which the individual can give is exercised upon it, and the force thus produced is recorded by the usual clockwork device. Fifty robust men, and the same number of healthy women, both belonging to the middle class of society, with ages varying from twenty-five to forty-five years, were tested in this way by the Paris scientist, with the following results. The strongest man of the company was able to produce with his right hand a pressure equivalent to 85 kilogrammes (a kilogramme is rather more than 2lb.), and the weakest to 40 kilogrammes, the average being 66 kilogrammes. Between the strength of the right and left hands in man there was shown to be on an average a difference of 10 kilogrammes, the former, of course, being the most powerful in every case. One curious result was arrived at—the short men were all very nearly as strong as the tall men, the average difference between equal groups of the two sizes being only 3 kilogrammes. The force of the strongest women of the fifty who were selected amounted only to 44 kilogrammes, and that of the weakest to 16 kilogrammes, while the average was 33 kilogrammes. The average difference of the power of the right hand over the left in the women amounted

PRINCESS DOLGOROUKI'S MEMOIRS.

PRINCESS DOLGOROUKI, the morganatic wife of the late Czar, has (the Paris correspondent of the Daily Telegraph learns) just published her memoirs in Russia. Every available copy, however, has been pounced upon immediately by the police. In this interesting volume the Princess gives a graphic account of what happened on the very eve of the assassination of the ill-fated Alexander II. During the evening before the tragic event took place she was in a room adjoining that in which the police report for the day was being submitted to the Emperor. When Colonel Standen mentioned that soldiers, in whom more trust could be reposed, had been stationed on guard at the palace, the Czar displayed great irritation, exclaiming, "What! am I surrounded by traitors even in my own house? If such be the case, the most ragged beggar is happier than I. Well, I shall appeal to the people; dwell among them, and show them that I have confidence in them, and do not fear the cowardly assassins who are not emerged from their obscurity!" His Majesty, then went into the room in which the Princess was sitting, and said that he had decided on going to Viennar, although the Russians were hated there since his father died. He would settle some business with the Emperor of Austria, which could not be entrusted to a third party. Soon afterwards, at midnight, the unhappy Emperor discovered, to his horror, that his favourite dog Tristan had been poisoned, and flying again into a violent rage, he overwhelmed his valet with abuse and threats. The Princess had begged Alexander II. not to go out on the morrow; but at nine o'clock in the morning a note was brought to her which betrayed the nervous agitation to which the unfortunate monarch was a prey. He had begun by saying that in conformity with her wishes and his promise he would remain at home; but he had scratched out the words, and had written, instead, that he needed air and exercise and would go out soon, adding that he would bring back the Grand Duke Sergieus to lunch with her. The Princess was making preparations to accompany or follow the Czar, when,

Edmund Yates,

"His Recollections & Experiences,"

Vol. I., page 251, says:—

I COULD not afford good wine, and would not give bad; but there was some Irish Whiskey which I procured through Mayne Reid ("BUSHMILLS" was its name), which was highly esteemed.

Writing in the World of Dec. 22, 1886, he says:—

MENTION made, in certain Reminiscences of mine, of a pleasant and wholesome alcoholic stimulant, called "Bushmills Whiskey," has led the proprietors of the famous Distillery to assure me that their alcohol is still extant in its pristine excellence, and, to confirm the assurance, send me a specimen of their produce. "All taps," we are assured by Mr. Stiggins, "is wanity;" but I am glad to find that a favourite "wanity" of my youth is as mellow and as innocuous as when first introduced to my notice by my old friend, Captain Mayne Reid.

W. Sinclair Thompson, M.D., F.R.C.S., writes from London—"I have appreciated your old Whiskey very much, and recommend it to my patients."

"Land and Water" says—"Of all spirits, Whiskey is the most wholesome, and one of the finest 'brands' of that spirit I have ever tasted is Old Bushmills."

"The County Gentleman" says—"Connoisseurs giving Old Bushmills a trial cannot fail to appreciate its mellowness and flavour."

"Licensed Victuallers' Gazette" says—"We have sampled specimens of Old Bushmills Whiskey, and are quite of our old friend Captain Mayne Reid's opinion, that it has no superior."

"The Court Circular" says—"Old Bushmills can be specially recommended for its exceptionally pleasant flavour."

SPECIAL NOTICE TO MANUFACTURERS OF

AERATED WATERS

Hay's Soluble Essences are Guaranteed to be the Finest in the Market.

HONOURABLE MENTION:
International Food Exhibition, London, October, 1880.

GOLD MEDAL:
Society of Arts, Paris, 1883.

GINGER CHAMPAGNE.
(Made from Hay's Essence).

"An excellent and most agreeable beverage."—The Lancet.

"Mr. Hay has caught the fine Aroma of Ginger with remarkable success. It is equally sparkling but more refreshing than its rival, the Royal French Beverage."—The Chemist and Druggist.

GINGER ALE.
(Made from Hay's Fortified Essence.)

"It pours out with as fine a 'head' as any glass of ale, and possesses all the fine aromatic flavour of the pure Ginger."—The Chemist and Druggist.

The difference between preparations made from Hay's Essences and those made from the numerous spurious imitations of them bearing the name of Soluble Essences, is most marked, and no Manufacturer using the latter can compete with one using Hay's Preparations, as is universally known.

HAY'S SOLUBLE ESSENCE OF JAMAICA GINGER.
A Pure Essence of the Finest Ginger, perfectly free from Capsicum. Highly adapted for the manufacture of Transparent Aerated Waters, and for all Dietetic, Medicinal and Pharmaceutical purposes. Trade Price, 5s. per lb.; 12 lbs. and upwards, 4s. 6d. per lb.

HAY'S COMPOUND FORTIFIED ESSENCE OF JAMAICA GINGER. For First Quality Ginger Ale.
Specially prepared for the manufacture of the very Finest Ginger Ale made, is an addition of Vanilla, Lemon, and other flavours to the above. It imparts, with the exquisite Ginger Aroma of the above-mentioned Essence, a peculiarly fine fruity flavour, combined with the fullest amount of fragrance and pungency. Trade Price, 5s. 6d. per lb.; 12 lbs. and upwards, 5s. Quantity required, 5 fluid ozs. to each gallon of Syrup, making 106 10-oz. Bottles.

HAY'S GINGER ALE EXTRACT. For Second Quality Ginger Ale.
This Extract is strongly recommended for the manufacture of Ginger Ale, to which it imparts Pungency, Colouring, great Brilliancy, and an unusually Fine Ginger Flavour and Aroma, and makes a thoroughly good article. Trade Price, 4s. 6d. per lb.; 12 lbs. and upwards, 4s. Quantity, 3 fluid ozs. to each gallon of Syrup, making 106 10-oz. Bottles.

HAY'S GINGER ALE ESSENCE. Highly Concentrated. For Third Quality Ginger Ale.
This Essence, which is a complete Bouquet of Flavours in a highly concentrated state, makes a Ginger Ale possessing an amount of aroma, flavour, and quality that will be sure to command a large sale, and that is unsurpassed by the so-called finest Belfast Ginger Ale. Trade Price, 3s. per lb.; 12 lbs. and upwards, 2s. 6d. Quantity required half a fluid ounce to each gallon of Syrup, making 106 10-oz. Bottles. This Essence will be found most valuable to the general trade.

HAY'S GINGER CHAMPAGNE ESSENCE.
For the manufacture of Ginger Champagne. This Essence is a combination of the finest flavours, and imparts with the Ginger a most exquisite aroma, making a most delicious and refreshing approximation to Champagne. Trade Price, 8s. per lb.; 12 lbs. and upwards, 7s. 6d. per lb. Quantity required, 10 fluid ozs. to each gallon of Syrup, making 106 10-oz. Bottles.

HAY'S SOLUBLE ESSENCE OF MESSINA LEMONS.
A magnificent Preparation, perfectly soluble, and makes the finest Lemonade obtainable. Trade Price, 8s. 6d. per lb.; 12 lbs. and upwards, 8s. "I added in the proportion of 1 fluid oz. to each gallon of Syrup, the Soluble Essence imparts the most delicious flavour of the Lemon."—The Chemists' Journal.

HAY'S LEMON FLAVOUR. (Perfectly Soluble).
Trade Price, 5s. per lb.; 12 lbs. and upwards, 4s. 6d. Quantity required, one and a half fluid oz. to each gallon of Syrup, making 106 10-oz. Bottles.

HAY'S HOP ALE ESSENCE.
This Essence is made from the Choicest Hops grown, and is unrivalled for its peculiarly fine Hop Flavour and aroma. Hop Ale made from this Essence has the full flavour of the Finest Hops, and is a very appetising Bitter Beer. Trade Price, 8s. 6d. per lb.; 12 lbs. and upwards, 8s. Quantity required, two fluid ozs. to each gallon of Syrup, making 106 10-oz. Bottles.

*NOTE.—The above are specially recommended to Clubs, Hotels, Messes, and Stores requiring the very finest Essences obtainable. There is nothing in the market to equal them.

HAY'S LEMON FLAVOUR. (Perfectly Soluble.) An exceptionally fine Essence, giving full flavour of the fresh fruit. Trade price, 5s. per lb., 12 lbs. and upwards, 4s. 6d. Quantity required, one and a half fluid oz. to each gallon of Syrup, making 106 10-oz. Bottles.

LEVER WATCHES FOR INDIA.

THE construction of most Lever Watches have in the past few years degenerated into toy's making. This is generally the case with watches intended for the Trade, especially the bazar Trade. Tricks of the most shameful description takes the place of honest watch making and still every Dealer or Agent will guarantee his articles to be best in order to procure a quick sale, only to the detriment of respectable Manufacturers and the Public.—We would caution against actual deceiving appearance in watches and such contrefaits as fancy jewels, delicate mecanisms, unscientific principles of wheel-works and Lever Adjustments.

☞ Ask Dealers to guarantee, on special warranty paper, and in full that you get real ruby jewels in the watch you buy and see how many can do it.

Genuine watches with Trade marks or Trade name are obtainable at manufacturers' own prices from G. A. Charpie and Co., Bombay and Calcutta, whose Catalogue of 84 different kind of Watches, for every purse and fancy, is sent free on application.

Household Lever Time-pieces.—We have secured the Sole Agency of the best American Clock Factory for the manufacture of 4 and 2 inches round Lever Time-pieces, with or without Alarms, plain or Automatic figure dials (coloured). These articles have no equal in the market, every one of them has a special Trade-mark on dial or at back as an additional guarantee of good manufacture.

☞ No other firm in the whole of India offer advantages and goods of real merit, at prices intended to procure a large sale. See our new Watch No. 36 or 38.

KNIGHT OF THE ORDER OF LEOPOLD OF BELGIUM
KNIGHT OF THE LEGION OF HONOUR
LIGHT-BROWN COD LIVER OIL

THE PUREST. THE MOST PALATABLE. THE MOST DIGESTIBLE.
THE MOST EFFICACIOUS.

Incontestably proved by Thirty Years' Medical Experience to be
The only Cod Liver Oil which produces the full curative effects in CONSUMPTION AND DISEASES OF THE CHEST, THROAT AFFECTIONS, GENERAL DEBILITY, DISEASES OF THE SKIN, WASTING DISEASES OF CHILDREN, RICKETS, AND ALL SCROFULOUS DISORDERS.

SELECT MEDICAL OPINIONS.

SIR G. DUNCAN GIBB, Bart., M.D.,
Physician to the Westminster Hospital.

"The value of DR. DE JONGH'S LIGHT-BROWN COD LIVER OIL as a therapeutic agent in a number of diseases, chiefly of an exhaustive character, has been admitted by the world of medicine; but, in addition, I have found it a remedy of great power in the treatment of many affections of the throat and larynx, especially in Consumption of the latter, where it will sustain life when everything else fails."

DR. SINCLAIR COGHILL,
Physician to the Royal National Hospital for Consumption, Ventnor.

"I have convinced myself that in Tubercular and the various forms of Strumous Disease, DR. DE JONGH'S LIGHT-BROWN COD LIVER OIL possessed greater therapeutic efficacy than any other Cod Liver Oil with which I am acquainted. It was especially noticeable in some number of cases in which the patients protested they had taken, and could not retain or digest other Cod Liver Oil, that DR. DE JONGH'S Oil was not only tolerated, but taken readily, and with marked benefit."

JOSEPH J. POPE, Esq., M.R.C.S.,
Late Staff Surgeon, Army, Professor of Hygiene, Birkbeck Institution, London.

"I found during my Indian experience that the worth and character of DR. DE JONGH'S LIGHT-BROWN COD LIVER OIL remained unchanged by tropical heat or foreign climate, and it was, from its uniformity of character, particularly adapted for long-continued administration. The value of 'hydro-carbons' in all debilitated states of the system is now becoming thoroughly recognized; and it is, without doubt, from the animal oils and fats, rather than from their vegetable substitutes, that we may hope to derive the surest benefit. The Oil of DR. DE JONGH places in everyone's reach a reliable and valuable remedy, one that cannot be too widely recognized."

DR. R. O. CROFT,
Author of "Handbook for the Nursery."

"DR. DE JONGH'S LIGHT-BROWN COD LIVER OIL is almost a specific in many of the Diseases peculiar to Infancy and Childhood, and I have seen marked benefit produced by its use. Patients prefer it to the Pale Oils, and are able to retain it more comfortably."

DR. DE JONGH'S LIGHT-BROWN COD LIVER OIL is supplied ONLY in IMPERIAL HALF-PINTS and QUARTERS, sealed with BETTS'S Patent Capsule, impressed on the top with DR. DE JONGH'S Stamp, and on the side with his Signature, and the Signature of ANSAR, HARFORD & Co.; and bearing under the wrapper a Label with the same Stamp and Signatures.

WITHOUT THESE MARKS NONE CAN POSSIBLY BE GENUINE.

FAGGED, WEARY & WORN OUT!!

Anyone whose duties require them to undergo mental or unnatural excitement or strain should use

ENO'S "FRUIT SALT."

It allays nervous excitement, depression, and restores the nervous system to its proper condition (by natural means). It is the best preventive and cure for biliousness, sick headache, skin eruptions, impure blood, pimples on the face, giddiness, feverishness, mental depression, want of appetite, soreness of the stomach, constipation, vomiting, thirst, &c., and to remove the effects of errors of eating and drinking.

DRAWING AN OVERDRAFT ON THE BANK OF LIFE.—Late hours, fagged, unnatural excitement, breathing impure air, too rich food, alcoholic drink, gouty, rheumatic, and other blood poisons, biliousness, sick headache, skin eruptions, pimples on the face, want of appetite, heartburn, accidental indigestion, sourness of the stomach, &c., use ENO'S "FRUIT SALT."

OUT OF SORTS!—Extract of letter from a Provincial Chemist:—"We have a great sale for your 'FRUIT SALT.' Indeed, I should not like to be without it for my own use; I seldom, if ever, take anything else when out of sorts."

PHYSICAL AND MENTAL TOIL.—"I am working from between six and seven in the morning until ten or eleven at night, and on Sunday morning I wake up as usual a little after six o'clock; but I am glad that it is a day of rest. My head feels large and heavy. I take two teaspoonfuls of your 'Fruit Salt' half an hour before breakfast, and after breakfast it has removed the load from my head, and I feel 'like a giant refreshed with wine.' For years I have received much benefit from your 'Fruit Salt.' I have recommended it to many.—Yours, &c., A SON OF TOIL.—March, 1885. Mr. J. C. ENO."

IMPORTANT TO MISSIONARIES, NEW GUINEA.—"How I wish I had a dozen bottles of ENO'S 'FRUIT SALT!' It is the best medicin I ever had, and the most refreshing drink I have yet tried."—Explorations by Rev. J. Chalmers, London Missionary Society.

"THOUSANDS OF MILES IN INDIA."—ENO'S "FRUIT SALT" I have found for many years of the utmost value in the hot and dry seasons, also in the monsoons. I have travelled some thousands of miles in India during the last thirteen years, and in all the various changes of climate I have always found ENO'S "FRUIT SALT" the most refreshing beverage I could get, especially after long heavy marches and other fatiguing duties to which the British soldier of late has been exposed to. I am yours, &c., A Warder, at Central Military Prison, Poonah. Bombay, Jan. 30, 1884. To Mr. J. C. ENO.

CAUTION.—Legal Rights are protected in every civilised country. Examine each bottle and see that the Capsule is marked ENO'S "FRUIT SALT." Without it you have been imposed on by a WORTHLESS IMITATION. Sold by all Chemists, &c. Prepared only at ENO'S "FRUIT SALT" WORKS, Pomeroy St., London, S.E., by J. C. ENO'S Patent.

NOTICES.

Rowland's Macassar Oil

Has been known for 100 years as the best preserver and beautifier of the hair: it prevents it falling off or turning grey, str engthens weak hair, and effectually cures dandruff; it is unsurpassed as a brilliantine for the beard and moustaches, to which it imparts a soft and silky appearance; it is also sold in a golden colour for fair hair and children.

Rowland's Kalydor

A soothing and emollient milk for the face, and is most cooling to the skin in hot climates; it removes freckles, tan, sunburn, roughness and redness of the skin, pimples, cutaneous eruptions, &c., and produces soft fair skin, and a lovely delicate complexion.

ROWLAND'S ESSENCE OF TYRE, a harmless preparation for dyeing red or grey hair a permanent brown or black. Ask chemists and druggists for Rowland's articles, 20, Hatton Garden, London, England, and avoid baseless and injurious imitations.
